Ford vs. Rockefeller
50,000 Kind Indians
A Worried Queen
Handicap for Louisiana

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1928, by Star Co.

HENRY FORD'S off-hand statement, "No successful boy ever saved money," was not meant literally. He meant that it was better to spend for information than merely to save a few dollars. Thomas A. Edison, his intimate friend, "never had any money until he got so much that he couldn't spend it."

The other, John D. Rockefeller, is "world's richest man" surely "a successful boy," and did save money. He advises young and old to save now, as he hands each one a ten-cent piece with a smile worth a good deal of money. Mr. Rockefeller will tell you: "Save money, not chiefly for the money you save, but because saving teaches self-control, and that's the beginning of wisdom."

Ford has high respect for John D. Rockefeller. He said to this writer: "I never saw John D. Rockefeller but once. But when I saw that face I knew what made Standard Oil."

Bolivia still wants to fight Paraguay. Young Bolivians enroll, march and drill. Fifty thousand Quichuas and Amaras Indians offer to fight on Bolivia's frontiers. Deeply touched, the Bolivian government thanks them.

It is hard to realize that not long ago the British were recruiting Indians in Canada, sending them to scalp their Yankee cousins in northern New York and elsewhere. Times improve.

King George is not able to answer the message of sympathy sent to him by President Coolidge, and a reply sent by Queen Mary through Lord Stamfordham reveals her anxiety. She refers to "the general infection." Doctors know what that means—a poisoned blood stream. And she foresees "weeks of slow, anxious progress before convalescence can be reached."

If the King recovers, he will probably owe his life to the return of his oldest son, and prompt action taken by him. Assuming the responsibility of life or death, it was the Prince of Wales that ordered an operation, without which the King's death was inevitable.

Shipping Board handicaps New Orleans by a differential of 10 cents per ton on importations of cotton from India. New York Harbor gets the benefit of the difference.

Uncle Sam should treat all his children alike. Why handicap Louisiana because the great harbor of New Orleans happens to be some miles west of New York?

Has the Supreme Court of the United States had a chance to pass on that question?

"I'm game—not worrying a bit," said "Red" Moran to Father McCaffrey, walking to the electric chair smoking a cigarette. "Red" took the cigarette from his mouth when the death cap was put on his head, and so died.

Moran was mistaken in his statement, "I am game." True gameness fights through the battle of life, hard though it may be.

Anybody can show bravado for a moment. To endure life's troubles requires gameness of a higher kind than that possessed by Moran when he killed two policemen and smoked in the death room.

Any gentleman "short" of Radio Corporation or Victor Talking Machine yesterday knows the feelings of Dante's Perdita Geneta.

Radio went up $42 a share, Victor Talking Machine 19 points. Somebody bought 40,000 shares of the latter at the start. It is not safe to sell short, although it is a temptation sometimes, with geese buying.

Secretary of Labor Davis would fix the coal problem with a coal trust, limited to 500 operators, cutting down production, giving the country only as much coal as it would buy at a fair price, with laws against trusts modified.

By all means modify laws out of date. But you won't solve the coal problem unless you take care of workers.

What about them? Two hundred mine owners might be restored to prosperity. What about thousands of coal miners that don't know any other trade and would be thrown out of work? It may sound bolshevistic, but somebody ought to think about them.

Call More Doctors to Aid King

London, Dec. 15 (AP)—Unusual activities of the doctors about King George's sick room late this afternoon occasioned keen interest not unmixed with anxiety for possible new and unfavorable developments in the royal patient's condition.

Two new physicians were called into consultation at Buckingham Palace into in session. They were Sir Farquhar Buzzard of Penn and Sir Stanley Hewett, the King's regular doctors, for about an hour and left the palace shortly after 6 o'clock this evening.

The two new physicians were Dr. William Adlington Howitt and Dr. Robert Stanton Woods, both members of the Royal College of Surgeons. It was the first time that they had attended a consultation.

The customary authoritative statement on the king's condition, which has been available recently during the afternoon, was omitted today.

The king's physicians this morning issued this bulletin:

"The king has had several hours' sleep. The local conditions is so far satisfactory. There is no in-

SHOW 'TORTURE TOOLS' OF HUB MAN ACCUSED OF CRUELTY TO CHILDREN

In support of the most appalling charges of cruelty to children in the memory of court attaches, Probation Officer Thomas F. Feehan today displayed before Judge Parmenter in Municipal Court a collection of instruments of torture rivaling those of Oriental barbarism.

They were offered as evidence against Antonio Faroce of Sheafe st., who is charged by [illegible] Feehan with having used them on his children, Peter, 11, and [illegible] Frances.

Listed as the exhibit were a hammer, a pair of steel pliers, a leather [illegible] strap, a police "billy" and several paper clips equipped with powerful gripping jaws.

According to Feehan's testimony in the preliminary hearing on the cruelty charges, Faroce has habitually made use of the pliers and paper clips to pinch the bodies of his children and has frequently subjected

CERO, DOOMED, OFFERS BLOOD TO SAVE WOMAN

Gangi Cero, convicted murderer of Joseph Fantasia, sent word from the Charlestown State Prison death-house today that he would give a quart of his blood to save the life of Mrs. Anna Downey, 55, a patient at Boston City Hospital.

Mrs. Downey, whose home is in Nashua st., West End, is the wife of a firemen who was crippled in line of duty, and is the mother of a soldier who was wounded and disabled in the World War. She has no money to buy blood at the usual price of $50 a quart.

Of the four living members of Mrs. Downey's family, none is physically fit to make the necessary sacrifice. All four have offered, only to be refused by surgeons after they had submitted to examination.

Mrs. Downey's mother is 80. The husband, James, 57, has never re-

NUDE PARADE OF EARL CARROLL GIRLS PROBED

New York, Dec. 15—Stories of "nude parades" as obligatory preludes to getting chorus girl jobs with Earl Carroll's latest theatrical production were being investigated today by Dist. Atty. Joab H. Banton.

Anti-vice society agents, Chorus Equity Association, and various other organizations of stage folk were also preparing to take action based on the stories of Miss Ann Moss Gaynor and Miss Louise Blakely, youthful showgirls who claim that they were ordered to pose unclad at a private rehearsal before Carroll.

The producer, less than a year out of Atlanta penitentiary, where he served a term for perjury in connection with his alleged "bathtub" wine party, said today he is now the victim of a "holdup."

Miss Blakely, whose complaint with that of Miss Gaynor, precipitated the present investigation and set all Broadway buzzing excitedly,

BRUCE CALLS KELLOGG PACT 'STAB IN THE AIR'

Washington, Dec. 15 (AP)—The first opposition to the Kellogg treaty to outlaw war, expressed in the Senate, came today from Senator Bruce, Democrat, of Maryland, who assailed the pact as "a stab in the air" and "a futile gesture."

He made his attack over a mild protest from Senator Curtis, Republican leader and Vice-President-elect, who suggested the Maryland reserve his remarks for executive session.

Bruce insisted on going ahead and the ensuing clamor brought a re-

GAINS HOLD IN MARKET

Most active issues closed above their lows for the week-end in Wall Street trading. Radio Corp., which wound up Friday with a net gain of $42 a share, was subjected to profit-taking.

The decline in Radio from $352 to $335, coupled with a renewal of selling pressure against the motor shares, checked the upward price tendency before the end of the first hour. Victor Talking Machine converted an early gain of 2 points into a loss of 4. Packard Motors dropped 4 points and Chrysler, B. S. Kresge and Sears Roebuck sold a point or more lower.

Pittsburgh Coal advanced 6 points to a new high record at 72. Chicago Pneumatic Tool ran up 5 points and American Radiator, Curtiss, National Bellas Hess, Peoples Gas and A. M. Byers moved up 3 to 3½ points before the advance was checked by selling in the general list.

In view of the possibility of a sharp advance in call money rates next week, several of the large commission houses urged extreme caution in the making of new commitments. Fears of a "recovery reaction" also were stressed by some brokerage houses.

POLICE TO PREVENT HARVARD SHOW FROM PLAYING IN BOSTON

Mayor Nichols today placed a ban on the Harvard Dramatic Club's play, "Fiesta," in Boston, following receipt of a report by Cambridge police censors that the production, which has a cast of Harvard students and Back Bay debutantes, is unfit for production.

The show was scheduled for presentation tonight at Hanover Hall, Back Bay. The mayor notified the club that any attempt to produce the play and asked Police Commissioner Wilson and the owners of the building not to permit it.

Several prominent Boston society women, learning of the nature of the play, denounced it and withdrew as patrons.

Added to previous charges that the performance was indecent, allegation was made today that it is blasphemous.

It was because of the scheduled Boston showing that Police Superintendent Michael H. Crowley and Mayor Nichols, having received complaints, asked Cambridge officials to conduct an investigation at last night's performance in Brattle Hall, Cambridge.

Three censors appointed by Police Chief McBride of Cambridge turned "thumbs down" on the production in their report today. Mayor Quinn announced he would have stopped the play himself had he known of its nature.

The report embodying condemnation of "Fiesta" was forwarded to the Boston officials and Mayor Nichols took his

Keene, N. H., Dec. 15 (AP)—A 90-year-old man and his 91-year-old sister perished today when fire destroyed the home in which they had lived all their lives. The first was not discovered until the house was virtually leveled. The brother and sister were Edward and Mary Joslin. They had lived in the Joslin homestead under the care of Mrs. Ada Hall. Yesterday she left them for the first time in many months to go to her home in Ayer, Mass., for a few days.

POLICE CENSORS FIND HARVARD SHOW DIALOGUE IMPROPER

REPORT TO CROWLEY, NICHOLS

action after conferring with City Censor John H. Cassidy, Corporation Counsel Leland Atwell Assistant Corporation Counsel Samuel Silverman.

The members of the Harvard organization "met in a huddle," in football parlance, over what they should do in view of a large ticket sale for a "white elephant" show.

Promise of "co-operation" was given Boston officials by the management of the building, but it was expected that a policeman would be stationed there by Commissioner Wilson to assist in carrying out the order he had received.

Censor Cassidy said the license of the hall would be revoked if the play was staged.

"Degrading of womanhood" in the lines spoken by characters in the play was the chief complaint made by persons who expressed their objection to Superintendent Crowley and the Hub Mayor.

There was also vigorous objection to a mountain top scene where a poon girl, the ladies' female character, and the villain, Don Felipe, are "betrayed by nature," according to the Don's description of it.

The blasphemy charge, made today to Superintendent Crowley by a man and some whose names were withheld, concern a discussion between a man and wife over "having so many twins." She blames him, but he sidesteps and says, "It's God's fault."

The report signed by the three Cambridge censors, Sergts. Charles H. Preskey and Wilbur L. O'Dell and Policewoman J. Edith Taylor, follows:

CENSORS' REPORT.

"We, the undersigned, having attended the Hasty Pudding club performance of Fiesta, presented December 11 (1) at Brattle hall wish to report as follows:

"In our opinion the acting of this play was not objectionable. Some of the dialogue however, was extremely objectionable, rendering the play as a whole unfit for presentation.'

Commenting on this declaration, Chief McBride said 'The scene where the couple go to the mountain top, and the language used therein, did not meet with the views of the investigators."

Harvard authorities will not take action in the matter, according to a statement today by the university regent, Matthew Luce, who said the graduate board has passed the play.

GRADUATE BOARD

According to Charles P. Leatherbee, dramatic club president, this board consisted of Prof. F.C. Packard, Winthrop James, a noted figure in the theatrical world; Prof. J. S. P. Tatlock, Walter Prichard Eaton, prominent dramatic critic, and Prof. G. P. Baker.

"It has never been the policy to present plays bordering on the limits of moral turpitude or provocative of official action," said Leatherbee. "We only followed the practice of producing new dramas which had never before been acted in public."

Mrs. John Chipman Gray of Beacon st. fiction, is one society woman who today said she would withdraw as a patroness.

MISUNDERSTOOD PLAY.

"I am astounded at information given me relative to the Harvard play," said Mrs. Gray. "I thought it was a nice little play. I thought it was an account of the childhood of Christ. I presume I thought it because one of the characters is named Jesus.

"I accepted as patroness as a matter of course. I have done so in the past and never found anything more than edifying in the clean plays. I thought the club modern, but not risque. I am not a risque woman but do want to encourage talent.

"I do not want to be connected with anything like this present play and I will withdraw as a patroness at once. I have just come from New York and knew nothing about the facts until I reached home."

WITHDRAWS NAME

"Horrified" was the term used by Mrs. Robert Whitman Atkinson, one of the patronesses, when asked her opinion. Mrs. Atkinson, who lives at Heath Hill, Brookline, said she would instruct the Harvard authorities to remove her name from the list.

"I wouldn't stand for anything like that," she said. "I think it's outrageous to have the names of women like myself connected with a play of that sort. I am against that sort of play. I think it is wrong for the Harvard Dramatic Club to produce a play of the character of this one. I thought it a nice clean play. I am horrified to learn what it really is."

REPORT TO CROWLEY

Mrs Thomas B. Allen was the only patroness who could be reached today who had seen the play and she objected to it very emphatically.

"Indecent, unclean, objectionable," was the report made to Supt. Crowley by the man and woman who alleged blasphemy.

It was a man who signed himself "a citizen and a father" who made the original objection which led to the police head's request for censorship. Similar complaints reached Mayor Nichols shortly afterward.

An exchange of remarks between Chato, one of the characters in "Fiesta," and Rafaela, who is played by Rachael Allyn of the Back Bay, was one of the alleged objectionable features. Chato is played by Charles Leatherbee, Harvard senior and president of the dramatic club.

In this exchange, carried out in Scene I of the first act, Chato, reverting the words of his role, stated to Rafaela: "You fall for every man who asks you." She replied: "Not every man. I've always been faithful to the ranch."

The officers were reported to have scribbled these lines onto their pads.

Another line which caused the officers to get especially busy with their pencils concerned a mountain scene in the play, in which Guadalupe, the heroine, figures. She is Miss Alice Cobb.

In this scene, Guadalupe journeys to the mountain top with the villain, who is Don Felipe, the character being played by Robert Wallstein, Harvard freshman. At the opening of the second scene she is found alone on the mountain top by Chato. Don Felipe being missing. She is weeping.

Chato inquires about her trouble. At the moment, Don Felipe returns. Chato and Don Felipe face each other, Chato asking about the trouble. Felipe says: "I did not betray her. Nature betrayed us both."

Later, Felipe states, "I regret his more than anything I ever did in my life, except when I lost 5000 pesos in a card game at Tampico."

Rumors were afloat to the effect that Dean Brown of Radcliffe had forbidden any of her charges to take roles in Fiesta. This is true, but not a new ruling. Radcliffe girls were not allowed to take part in "The Chisholm Trail," last year's fall production, a cowboy play, nor were they allowed in "Bassan," the production of last spring. Radcliffe girls have not acted in Harvard plays for over a year, and no attempt was made to secure their services in this year's show.

QUINN SHOCKED BY SHOW

"I am surprised and shocked that the Harvard Dramatic Cclub should put on such a performance," said Mayor Edward W. Quinn of Cambridge today regarding the play "Fiesta."

The permit for the show was taken out as a dance permit by Edward T. Batchelder of the club.

"If the objectionable features had been brought to my attention I would have stopped it immediately."

Work on Diocesan House to Continue

Construction of the Diocesan House of the Episcopal Church Association at 1 Joy st. will go on uninterrupted as a result of a decision today by Judge Pierce of the Supreme Court.

Judge Pierce dismissed a petition by Courtenay Guild for a writ of mandamus to compel Louis K. Rourke, Boston building commissioner, to enforce the provisions of the zoning law, which it was claimed the proposed structure violated. There is no appeal from this decision.

Patronesses Strong in Denouncing Play

Only one of the patronesses of the Harvard Dramatic Club play, "Fiesta," called unfit for presentation by the police, had seen the production, as far as could be learned today. She objected to it strongly. Only one patroness could be found who defended the club, and she had not seen the show.

MRS. ROBERT WHITMAN ATKINSON of Brookline—"I am horrified to think that my name has been used as patroness for such a play. I will tell Harvard University to remove my name from the list of patronesses."

MRS. JOHN CHIPMAN GRAY of Boston—"I am astounded. I thought it an account of the childhood of Christ. I am not a risque woman, and will withdraw at once."

MRS. THOMAS B. ALLEN of Boston—"I saw the play and don't think it should have been put on the stage."

MRS. NATHANIEL ALLISON of Boston—"I did not know anything about the play when I gave permission for the use of my name. My husband is a professor at the university and that is the only reason my name is connected with the play."

MRS. P. DE M. BARBEY of Brookline—"I don't take anyone else's opinion. I've never yet seen anything that the Harvard Dramatic Club did that shocked me. I intend to see the play."

MRS. JOHN F. MORRIS of Boston—"I haven't seen the play."

MRS. CLARENCE R. EDWARDS—"I am not in position to criticise, not having seen it, but I allowed the use of my name in good faith."

MRS. WILLIAM LOWELL PUTNAM of Beacon st., sister of President Lowell of Harvard: "I have not seen the play and know nothing about it. My name, having gone forth, will not be withdrawn. How could I withdraw it. Censoring is sometimes a bad thing, as it features the lines that it is desired should be suppressed. In this way the things that are desired suppressed are played up and given even more publicity than otherwise. Many people who otherwise would have paid little attention to them pay a great deal more."

MRS. PHILIP S. RUST of Commonwealth ave: "I will withdraw my name immediately as a patroness. I wouldn't want my name connected with anything of an improper nature. I have been ill and knew nothing about the character of the play. What's the matter with them over at Harvard, anyway?"

Arthur Hammerstein, president of the Protective Managers' Association, and Sam Harris, president of the Organized Theatrical Association, were today asking a full check-up of the charges made by the chorus girls.

says that, while playing with the "Good Boy" company, she was offered a chance in the chorus of the new Carroll revue, "Floretta."

She rehearsed for the latter for a full week, according to her story, and was selected as qualified for a regular position. But—

"You'll have to satisfy Mr. Carroll that your figure is not padded," she was told. She was then turned over to a young woman who was to show her how the "test" was to be made.

"This little lady" will look out for you and see that you are not embarrassed," Miss Blakely was promised.

The "little lady" gave Miss Blakely a smock and donned a similar garment herself—with nothing underneath it.

"Do as I do," she said. "When you're in front of Mr. Carroll, first open your smock, then discard it entirely. Take three steps forward and three steps back. It's just to show him your shape is real. Don't be afraid."

Miss Blakely wasn't afraid, she says. She was "mad."

According to her story, Herman Hoover, Carroll's stage manager, then told her, "Sorry, if you feel that way, we won't need you in the show."

Rich Widow Bride of Hitchcock Today

New York, Dec. 15 (INS)—Mrs. Margaret Mellon Laughlin, widow of Alexander Laughlin, Jr., and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Larimer Mellon of Pittsburgh, will become the bride today of Thomas Hitchcock, Jr., international polo star and son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hitchcock of Aiken, S. C.

The ceremony, scheduled for the Hotel Plaza, was to be a quiet affair, with only relatives and intimate friends present. Rev. Dr. Hugh Thomson Kerr, pastor of the Shadyside Presbyterian Church, Pittsburgh, was to officiate.

12-HOUR HOP IN ANTARCTIC IS PLANNED

By CAPT. SIR HUBERT WILKINS
Commander Hearst-Wilkins Antarctic Expedition.

(Copyright, 1928, by New York American and Universal Service, Inc.)

Deception Island (Antarctica), Dec. 15—(Via whaler Hektoria and Kup-San Francisco short-wave radio station). The weather was such that all three whale catchers had to spend the day in the harbor. This was done not unwillingly, for the Norwegians here as well as their folks at home, and ourselves, too, respectfully paid tribute to Raold Amundsen's memory.

Extensive search has failed to reveal a suitable snow-covered field for a take-off on skis with a heavy load, or in fact, any sort of a load.

ICE DISAPPEARS

According to records and men visiting here for the last ten years, the season this year is more than a month early. Normally, the ice in the harbor would still be sound and perfect for landing either on wheels of skis. The ice has already disappeared.

Day before yesterday and yesterday, while Eielson and I were on a whale-catcher, we vainly searched Snow Island, about 50 miles off shore, and other places for a take-off field.

On all flat surfaces the snow has melted, leaving black patches of volcanic tuft. The sloping surfaces where snow accumulates are either too sloping or too scarred with deep crevices.

At the first possible opportunity we will take the Los Angeles as a seaplane and with the biggest possible load make a trip into Wendell sea.

PLANS FLIGHT

An hour's sunshine encouraged us to pour 200 gallons of gasoline into the Los Angeles, now riding on floats, and to stow into the machine again our personal belongings.

At the first indication of 12 hours of flying weather, I, with my pilot, will start into Wendell sea; that is if our machine will lift the load.

There we hope to solve this important geographical question:

"Is Graham's Land part of the Antarctic continent?"

4 BEAT DEATH BY INCHES AT R. R. CROSSING

Two unidentified couples in a speeding sedan escaped death by inches when their machine crashed through the guard gate at the Willard st. railroad crossing, West Quincy, and hurled across the path of an oncoming train as a score of persons in the New Haven railroad station nearby looked on in horror.

Beating the train by only a few inches, the sedan ploughed through the safety gates on the opposite side of the tracks and continued up Willard st., disappearing before the onlookers could recover from their astonishment and note the registration numbers of the car.

The engineer of the train, bound to the South Shore, saw the speeding automobile shoot across the tracks as the train approached the station.

The guard gates on both sides of the tracks were wrecked.

SMOKING STAR

Theodore Roberts, one of the most loved of screen stars, who made "father roles" famous, is dead and Hollywood and theatergoers the world over are genuinely sorry. He was 67. He could almost make a cigar act human, making it help him to portray a difficult role. Note the expressions here, all aided by the cigar.

DEATH TAKES 'DADDY' OF THE SCREEN

Although Theodore Roberts, motion picture actor, who died yesterday in California, was a master of character portrayals without props of any kind, his ability to express moods solely through the manipulation in his mouth of a large cigar, was probably one of the most famous personal characteristics on stage or screen.

What other actors do with their features, Roberts accomplished with his cigar, expressing rage, indignation, amazement and joy with the deft touch of a real artist.

Cocked up in one corner of his mouth, chewed fiercely, puffed furiously or allowed to droop, the weed, like an artist's crayon, limned the range of the emotions, and left none of Roberts' audiences in doubt as to what he meant to portray.

The cigar was not an affectation with the "Daddy" of the movies, however, but was his constant companion of the sets.

He frequently said one of the hardest things to bear in one of his recent illnesses was being deprived of cigars.

The story is told of how Roberts, playing the part of Moses in the "Ten Commandments," drove out to location carefully made up in the impressive part of the ancient law giver with a large cigar jutting out through his beard.

BOY FLIER WINS $1000 IN FLIGHT ACROSS U. S.

Curtiss Field, N. Y., Dec. 15—Richard James, 17-year-old pilot, today completed a transcontinental flight begun October 30 in San Francisco.

James made the flight to win a $1000 prize offered for the first pilot under 18 years of age to fly a plane alone across the country.

Poor flying weather and damages necessitated by several forced landings, accounted for the month and a half taken for the cross-country flight.

James landed here at 10:30 a. m. after hopping off from Sudbury, Pa., at 8:30 this morning. A great reception was accorded him. He left shortly after to be received at New York City Hall by Mayor Walker.

BOOTLEG 'CZAR' THUG VICTIMS HALT INQUIRY

Police action in the brutal beating of two dog fanciers by a gang of bootleggers led by a State st. "broker," on Huntington ave., was held up today because of the failure of the victims, Patrick E. Dowd, Freeman st., Dorchester, and Thomas Hunter, Jr., of Highland pk., Roxbury, to make complaints.

Hunter telephoned the Back Bay police station that he would not appear there until Monday, while Dowd's condition, as a result of the attack, was said to prevent him from leaving his home.

Police declared that if complaints are made, a warrant will be sought for the arrest of the "broker" and others involved.

The so-called broker is said to be the power behind no less than 21 downtown speakeasies and two clubs.

According to the victims, the trouble started at a meeting of the Boston Terrier Club at the Copley Square Hotel. Dowd and Hunter opposed the "broker" in the election of officers. As they were on their way home on Huntington ave., the two claim they were attacked by five men from an automobile, and beaten with bottles.

Dowd and Hunter were found on the street and assisted to the Back Bay station where they told their stories. They were to have appeared there today and swear out complaints against their assailants.

Shoots Wife and Sheriff In Auto

Louisville, Ky., Dec. 15 (INS)—Campbell Marshall, 56, Frankfort farmer, shot his wife six times and wounded Deputy Sheriff Ora Dennis, when he was said to have found the latter sitting with his wife in a parked automobile today. Both are in a serious condition.

Marshall said he was compelled to sit home with his four children while his wife attended a dance. Becoming suspicious, he started to search for her and found her in the automobile.

Appeals are pouring in.

MUSIC OF XMAS MASS TO GO ON RADIO

Christmas music direct from the Cathedral of the Holy Cross will be presented to the New England radio audience at 10 o'clock Christmas morning, when WEEI will broadcast from the solemn pontifical mass. Cardinal O'Connell will officiate, and the choir of seminarians and the Boys' Sanctuary choir will sing.

This will be the first time that a Christmas mass has ever been broadcast in the country, so far as is known, and the first time that any mass has been broadcast from a Catholic church in New England.

Special permission was granted to WEEI by Cardinal O'Connell, after the Edison station received many inquiries from both Catholics and Protestants asking if the special Christmas music of the pontifical mass could not be broadcast from the Cathedral.

The seminarian choir comprises about 75 young men studying for the the priesthood at St. John's Seminary at Brighton.

The Boys' Sanctuary Choir also comprises about 75 voices and will be under the direction of the Rev. William E. Foley of the Cathedral. The organist will be Prof. Philip Ferraro.

Details of the broadcast are to be supervised by the Rev. Neil A. Cronin, Ph. D., administrator of the Cathedral. No time or expense is being spared at WEEI to make this broadcast a fitting climax to an especially successful year.

Edward A. Gisburne, acting program director at WEEI, and Chief Operator Ralph Mathewson have been working out the station details with Fr. Cronin.

U. S. Breaks Laws to Nab Xmas Rum

New York, Dec. 15 (INS)—The United States Government indicated today that it will go outside the law to prevent New York from getting in Christmas liquor.

With one rum-runner seized 30 miles off the coast, a violation of treaty rights, it was learned that customs and coastguard authorities plan to grab liquor ships anywhere they can find them, as the result of harsh words from Washington which threatened to use the axe on some of the officials stationed in New York.

BODY IS TAKEN FROM GRAVE TO GET PRINTS

Finger prints will determine today whether a man dead and buried for five months was a resident of Massachusetts or of Brooklyn, N. Y.

Two women, Mrs. Nicholas Boufler of this State, and Mrs. Maria de Palma of Brooklyn have claimed the man as their son, and each is attempting to collect $35,000 insurance.

The body was exhumed after five months' burial in St. John's Cemetery, Queens, N. Y., and through the forethought of the police, who took fingerprints at the time of burial, the man's identity will be established.

Last July 27 a man was found dead in a Manhattan street. Mrs. Pia Fuelli of 1119 86th st., Brooklyn, identified it as that of Raffaelo de Palma, whose mother, Mrs. Maria de Palma, lives at the address of Mrs. Fuelli.

The latter explained that the mother was too ill to view the body.

After the burial detectives decided that the prints were those of a man named Boufler, once convicted in Westchester County. Boufler's mother was brought to New York from her home in Massachusetts, the body was disinterred and she identified it as that of her son.

Mrs. de Palma, by now recovered from her illness, also viewed the body and persisted in the original identification.

The insurance company, which had paid Mrs. de Palma $6000 of the policy for $35,000 on her son's life, appealed to Dist. Atty. Dodd of Brooklyn and the exhumation and second finger-printing occurred.

COUPLE SHOT TO DEATH IN L. I. MYSTERY

New York, Dec. 15 (INS)—A young woman, about 25 years old, with jet black hair, and a well-dressed man some years older were found mysteriously shot to death outside a bungalow on the turnpike two miles west of Hempstead, L. I., today. Both were unidentified.

The police expressed the belief that they were murdered. They say the couple may have kept a tryst near or at the bungalow, were surprised, and shot down. The bungalow was vacant.

Four bullets were fired into the girl's head. The man was shot 10 times. Everything that would aid in the identification of the man had been removed from the body. The pockets of his clothing were ripped out. There was nothing that would identify the girl either. Her wedding ring evidently had been removed.

Salvatore Esposito, keeper of a nearby restaurant, told the police he had seen no one since midnight, but Capt. Harold R. King of Nassau County detectives ordered Esposito and all those in the restaurant taken into custody for questioning.

ARDENT SKATER
Charlotte Hopkins, daughter of James C. Hopkins, is one of Boston's most enthusiastic winter sport devotees.

Scenes like this become out-of-door reality soon when Jack Frost comes to town to stay. And even now are in-door reality, on the shining field of ice at the Arena where youthful skaters put in hours at mastering the intricacies of the figure eight and the waltz on skates. Very soon the out-of-door rink at the Country Club will supplement the Arena's smooth expanse.

Gloucester to Be City Beautiful

WITH a view to making the city more beautiful, and in order to improve the playgrounds, parks, and municipal property generally, the civic committee of the Gloucester Woman's Club is sponsoring a contest, open to pupils of the eighth and ninth grades, the high school, and to citizens in general.

To the school children they offer cash prizes for original ideas; to the townspeople, public recognition for submitting the best plans and suggestions.

The purpose is to stimulate better appreciation and interest, so that those in charge of public property may receive more support, financial and otherwise.

The chairman, Mrs. David S. Wheeler, and her committee are sending out form letters to fraternal and social organizations of the city, to enlist their co-operation, and the local paper is keeping the matter before the public.

The chairman of the Conservation committee, Miss Maude B. Wetherell, has personally conducted several walks to outlying beauty spots, such as Eastern Point Light and breakwater, the Old Salem and Heater Roads, the Paper House, and Pigeon Cove.

The annual bridge party is scheduled for December 28, the proceeds to go to the Maternity Fund of the club. Guest night will be observed January 11, and this will be the first event on the calendar for 1929

Elizabeth Beal Weds Lester Carleton De Courcey Hinds in Trinity Church Today

ANOTHER SATURDAY ARRIVES ON THE WINTER'S CALENDAR THAT IS PREDOMINANTLY THE BRIDE'S. The brilliance of a superlatively important wedding assemblage, candles twinkling about Trinity's altar; the sheen of velvets and the romance of wedding flowers—these were Miss Elizabeth Beal's contribution to the moving pageant of highest fashiondom. She weds with Lester Carleton De Courcey Hinds today, at high noon, and Trinity in all its glorious ecclesiastical career never held a smarter company, one more entirely representative of the town's aristocracy, than that gathered for the Hinds-Beal nuptials.

DIAMONDS FLASHED THEIR COLD STAR BLUE AND THEIR fulsome ruby red above the bride's brow in a graceful coronet of precious gems clasping feathery tulle that was the unadorned wedding veil. The wedding gown was the richness of ivory tinted velvet, a fabric so softly graceful and gleamingly ornamental in itself as to need only the straightest of straight lines to emphasize its beauty. There was the conventional "court" train and she carried an arm sheaf of Easter lilies.

MR. BEAL ESCORTED HIS DAUGHTER ON HER ALTAR PILGRIMAGE, and three ecclesiastics in turn intoned the solemn words of the marriage service. Altar decorations conformed to the bride's desire for simplicity and were calla lilies and balsam trees. The blue bloods who filled Trinity for the high noon ceremonial were the cream of the Social Register, the town's most augustly imposing set of aristocrats.

A PETTED DARLING OF INHERITED WEALTH AND SOCIAL prestige is the bride. Born to the purple and allied with the bluest of the blue, she has moved with the Olympians on both sides of the Atlantic. Beal, pere, is the Boylston Adams Beal for many years a figure of importance in the American Embassy staff which served Uncle Sam in the British capital. So preferment at Court and the favor of royalty has these many seasons brightened the aura raying about the Beals during their lengthy stays in London.

MISS BEAL BENT HER KNEE TO ROYALTY AT ONE OF the most sumptuously imposing of royal courts in the post-war chronicle. And on this side of the water a magnificent North Shore estate, an impressive town house on the "water side" of Beacon st., membership in the Chilton and the Vincent Clubs and kinship with the town's exalted are hers.

AS VERY GAY, VERY IMPORTANT AND VERY SMART, THE Charles K. Cummings ball last evening for Miss Margaret Cummings should be inscribed on the scroll of debutante functions. The older set turned out with all the enthusiasm of the buds and their beaux, and by midnight the Hotel Somerset's Louis XIV ballroom was the crush that marks a party as a huge success from the viewpoint of deb and dowager. Mrs. Cummings celebrated her third daughter's advent in the social swim with a handsome sea green velvet brocaded chiffon, and Miss Cummings was in white.

THE GOWN DEMONSTRATED JUST HOW SUCCESSFULLY yesterday's mode can be manipulated for the sweet young thing of today. The ivory satin bodice molded the figure much as Godey's Ladies Book thought proper. And there were net ruffles to form the skirt and follow the dipped hemline mode. Miss Evelyn Cummings' black velvet gown trailed a spray of bright pink roses from one shoulder. Mrs. John Malcolm Forbes, the former Miss Ethel Cummings, wore a gown of bright rose velvet with panels that swung sufficiently low to achieve unevenness of hem above coral satin slippers.

MRS. ROBERT TREAT PAINE DID CREDIT TO THE FAMILY connection at the ball, wearing something specially handsome in crystal white velvet avetly draped and glorified by ropes of pearls and diamond ornaments. Mrs. Charles K. Cummings, Jr., was charming in shimmering green velvet, and Mrs. Francis Cummings wore black, a gown that combined net and taffeta and had shoestring shoulder straps. Mrs. Frederic Mather Stone's gown of black velvet was beautifully done in silver beads. Mrs. Stone's son, James Cooley, was one of the usher corps entertained at the Cummings home at dinner before the dance. Francis Cummings it was, last evening, who wore the crimson carnation signifying his head ushership over a white carnationed corps of experts.

IF ONE LOVES RADIANT "HIGH" COLORS, CERTAIN OF THE buds supplied a pleasing prospect. Miss Sally Sprague's wine red velvet became a blue-eyed beauty excellently and had a bit of glitter from shoestring shoulder straps. Miss Mary Flagg's flambeau moire was the very essence of brilliance and sophistication, with its pointed train and matching bright slippers. Miss Rosamond Gardiner's coral velvet likewise was a dazzling bit of color in the melange. An elaborate trousseau provided Mrs. Everett Morse, Jr., the former Miss Anne Wentworth, with a gaily-tinted gown of velvet in the brightest of holly reds.

SO DARK-EYED A GIRL AS MISS LUISITA LELAND CAN wear white with charm, when that white is a silvery sequined bodice with billows of tulle for a skirt, and has a coral velvet bow sprayed from shoulder to hem. Miss Elizabeth Morison's corselet gown was smart and glittering, also frothy, with its orange tulle skirt and golden fishscale bodice. Miss Eleanor Ferry was in black. And Mrs. Samuel Cabot, who gave a dinner for Miss Ferry at the Chilton Club, was in black net with red, elaborately embroidered. Miss Marie Davenport Brown's smart velvet frock got its up and down line from square-ended panels. Miss Polly Beale's black velvet had touches of coral.

WEARING THE SMARTEST OF SMART EFFECTS IN BLACK with silver, Mrs. George von L. Meyer, Jr., appeared first at the Cummings party, and then went on to the Algonquin Club, where the Younger Married Set danced the late evening and early morning through. Miss Barbara Welch's dance frock was of white, a billowy, bouffant cloud of net, flecked with gold. Mrs Elisha Flagg carried a plumed fan with her white gown. Mrs. Henry Colt, spouse to one of the usher corps, wore white taffeta quaintly modeled. Mrs. Gardiner Fiske's blue taffeta was old timey as to design and modish as to line. Miss Sally Batelle wore mosque red net. Mrs. Roger Warner was in green moire. Mrs. James A. Parker was in green velvet.

WHEN "JAMES" ON MONDAY SAYS, "WHERE TO, MADAME?" just reply "48 Rutland st," and to that shop where brightened things fashioned by patient foreign fingers are for sale take the Christmas list. Some of its most perplexing "What shall I gives" will be solved then and there. And Junior League girls will be doing a probationary duty by helping in the selection of embroidered shawls, gay felt vests with matching caps; frocks for sports that rival the coat of many colors, and peasant dresses that fill a yawning want in many wardrobes.

MISS MARGARET CUMMINGS, BELLE OF LAST EVENING'S debutante ball, is one of the League that does a duty with smiling grace at the Folk Handicrafts' Guild. Miss Eleanor Perry is another, and the roster includes Miss Diana Lee-Warner, Miss Ruth Lyman, Miss Mary Eustis and Miss Edith Eustis. Persons privileged to be behind the scenes say the shop's stock is to be richly replenished for Monday, and for every day until Christmas, with bright new goods. It's the sort of stock that brings visions of fancy dress parties and holiday theatricals for the young people home from school and solves the Xmas problem perfectly.

CHRISTMAS GREENS YOU MUST HAVE, OF COURSE, IF your home would be properly festive this Yuletide season. But if your selection runs to the feathery ground pine and gleaming laurel, do not patronize the Farm and Garden Shop's sale at Horticultural Hall next Monday and Tuesday. Horticultural's vaulted spaces will be filled with greenery, a wide variety of spicy tangy scents, and fresh cut trees and such. But of laurel and ground pine never a sign will there be, since the Shop makes sale of these choice growths taboo.

MOVING WITH THE TIMES ARE THE SHOP'S EXECUTIVES. First and foremost, they wish to make a highly successful financial return from their sale. But also they walk hand in hand with those who conserve choice growths. Hence the taboo. But trade is sure to be brisk, since variety and freshness are the guides, and a selling staff of experts will be on hand—Mrs. Horace Frazer, Miss Mary Eustis, Mrs. Charles Mifflin Hammond and the others that so faithfully serve.

FLYING POLICE ASKED TO STOP ALL WARS

Lugano, Dec. 15 (AP)—League of Nations circles today had under discussion a proposal that wars be prevented by an international air police force. The plan was submitted to the League by Col. Clifford B. Harmon of New York, president of the International League of Aviators.

Foreign Minister Briand of France was understood to be enthusiastic over the proposal.

The project probably will be discussed by the League commissions studying international security and methods of strengthening machinery for the consolidation of peace. Many persons believe that a weakness of the League is its lack of a police force empowered to act to settle conflicts when pacific means fail.

Col. Harmon explained that the underlying idea of the plan was that all countries would place at the disposal of the League 10 per cent of their trained pilots. These pilots would serve as units of an air force of peace. They always would be ready for mobilization where war threatened.

Tunney Leads Marines in Prayers for King

Portsmouth, Eng., Dec. 15 (AP)—Gene Tunney today led the Marine Corps here in a silent prayer for the recovery of King George.

The incident, touching and dramatic, came while the retired champion was presenting to the British marines a cup given as a gift by American marines.

At the end of his address Tunney said quietly to the assembled officers and men who were drawn up in a square in the marine barracks:

"I now have the privilege of asking that you join me in bowing heads in silent prayer for the recovery of King George."

Tunney then bowed his head as did the officers and men and for several minutes me marine square was hushed in silence.

In his speech making the presentation of the cup, Tunney emphasized the friendliness existing between American and British marines.

Prince George at Sea in Race Back to London

New York, Dec. 15 (INS)—The Cunard liner Berengaria bearing Prince George to the bedside of his failing father steamed down the bay early today and headed for England.

Off Sandy Hook, the liner ploughed the waves at full speed. The captain had promised to get King George's youngest son home in record time.

The 24-year-old prince boarded the liner last night cheered by a radio telephone conversation with his mother in which Queen Mary told him that the king was making a gallant fight to recover from his illness.

The prince hopes to reach home by December 20, his 26th birthday.

The prince's wish that "no fuss be made over him" here was respected and his first visit to the gateway of the new world was a quiet one, although a large crowd saw him off at the pier last night.

He obtained a bird's-eye view of the city from the top of the Woolworth Building and accompanied by Sir Esme Howard, British ambassador, spent a quiet afternoon and evening at the home of Gen. Cornelius Vanderbilt on Park ave.

SHOPPERS JAM HUB STORES

With only eight shopping days remaining before Christmas buyers filled the stores today and "gift" trains were jammed carrying them to and from the downtown district.

In spite of the fact that the early shopping has been the rule rather than the exception, it was forecast as one of the biggest business days the big stores and the specialty shops have ever experienced.

Traffic officers at the busy intersection of Washington, Summer and Winter sts. had great difficulty managing the swarms of pedestrians and speeding the stream of motor traffic through. Until without incident, and extra police were placed there for their safety.

There were augmented police details at other crowded points, with sergeants taking command when congestion grew worst.

Due to the throngs, there were several bad traffic jams, but these in part resulted from the fact that foot travelers were given more time and leeway than usual in crossing the downtown streets.

The white lines painted on Washington st., between West and Winter, on both sides of the street, to add to the sidewalk width, proved a great convenience, although there was some trouble with motorists who ignored the warning to stay in the center.

The stores remain open until 9:00 tonight and until the same hour all next week. The 6 o'clock closing during the last five days has helped materially toward reducing the last-minute rush and today's late closing made it a more leisurely throng that streamed through the store aisles.

France Declines to Give Up Blackmer

Paris, Dec. 15 (INS)—The foreign office officially announced today that the American Embassy has been notified that the request for extradition of Henry M. Blackmer has been refused.

Blackmer, a missing Teapot Dome oil witness, was wanted by the Washington government to answer a charge of perjury in connection with his income tax returns in Colorado. He plans to make his future home in France.

Merchants Give 150 Christmas Dinners

A committee of merchants in the Uphams Corner section of Dorchester organized themselves into a Christmas basket group and will on December 23 distribute 150 dinners for needy families. covered from the injury suffered in fire. One son, James, Jr., is still in the United States Veterans' Hospital. The second son, William, 17, is ansemic.

Prison authorities did not believe today Cero would be allowed to leave his cell for the transfusion. If some other volunteer does not come forward, small hope is held out for Mrs. Downey.

Girl Gives Her Blood to Save Life of Fiance

New Bedford, Dec. 15—Miss Mary Oliver, 20, gave a quart of her blood at St. Luke's Hospital here, today, to save the life of her fiance, Millar T. Robbins, 24. Both young people are from Falmouth. Their wedding is set for New Year's day.

Robbins, after undergoing an operation for the removal of his tonsils, suffered a hemorrhage at his home. He was rushed by motor ambulance to New Bedford early today.

Blood transfusion was pronounced his only chance. Volunteers were called for. Miss Oliver responded, insisting that she be allowed to make the sacrifice.

Both donor and patient were expected to recover. The transfusion operation was performed by Dr. Stephen G. Rothwell of New Bedford.

May Bury Aged Man In Potter's Field

Unless relatives or friends intervene, the body of Matthias Smith of Stanford st., formerly of Portsmouth, N. H., who died at Boston City Hospital on December 7, will be buried in Potter's Field, it was announced today.

Smith, who was 87, was admitted to the hospital on November 27, giving an address on Stanford st. Hospital officials have learned he lived for some years in Portsmouth and are hopeful someone there will defray the funeral expenses.

them to beatings with the "billy" and cat-of-nine-tails.

Teehan told the court he discovered the alleged acts of cruelty through his investigation of conditions at the Faroce home, following a charge of neglect brought against him by his wife.

The limbs and bodies of the Faroce children, Teehan informed the court, display many signs of their alleged abuse, and in some places show evidences of teeth marks.

Additional evidence offered by Probation Officer Gross with having thrown a kettle of boiling water on the girl when she attempted to interfere in an argument between her father and Peter.

The youngsters were in court today when the father was arraigned, but were not called upon to support Teehan's charges.

Faroce pleaded not guilty to the cruelty complaint and was held in $1500 bail for a hearing on Dec. 18.

Judge Parmenter ordered his examination in the mean time by the county alienist, whose report will be submitted to the bench when Faroce appears at the hearing.

HOTEL RITZ MAN NEAR DEATH

John F. Sullivan of Newbury st., president of the corporation that operates the Hotel Ritz on Columbus ave., is in a serious condition at City Hospital with bichloride of mercury poisoning.

Sullivan, who was taken in a taxicab early today from the hotel by Robert Anderson, one of his employes, told hospital physicians he had taken the poisonous tablets by mistake.

KELLOGG PEACE PACT ATTACKED BY BRUCE

in the pacific virtue of that pact why, pray, when Mr. Kellogg was cooing like a gentle dove, did the President set up such a jungle roar about more cruisers in his address last Armistice Day?

"The only way really to renounce war is to renounce the instruments of war. There is nothing, however to evidence the fact that national disarmament is keeping pace with the millenium yearnings for unweaponed peace, of which the Kellogg pact is the most grandiloquent expression.

"On the contrary, all the unceasing palaver that has gone on about national disarmament since the end of the World War has accomplished practically nothing."

Bruce said the treaty seemed to him a step toward entrance of the United States in the World Court and the League of Nations, and therefore "under the determining influence of this thought would vote in favor of ratifying it.

"May the prayers of the pious," he concluded, "induce heaven to prosper far beyond my present expectations."

Gillett for Greater Navy Unless Britain Reduces

Washington, Dec. 15 (AP)—An increase in the navy because of the attitude of Great Britain on armaments was demanded in the Senate today by Senator Gillett, Republican, Massachusetts.

He said that if Great Britain is "unwilling to reduce her naval armaments," he could see no other safe course but to increase the American navy, and added:

"It is disagreeable to discuss hostilities, but it is dangerous to shut our eyes to them. I thoroughly agree with recent statements that war between the two countries is unthinkable. Yet all declarations of the best intentions are sometimes forgotten.

"Navy is our insurance."

Find Bristol Mutual Auto Insurance Company Solvent

The Bristol Mutual Liability Insurance Co., of New Bedford, doing a compulsory automobile insurance business in Massachusetts, is solvent, and will be permitted to continue in 1929, Acting Insurance Commissioner Arthur E. Linnell announced today.

He said that an examination just completed had convinced him of the solvency of the company.

FEAR FLU AT MT. HOLYOKE

Mt. Holyoke College will close early for the Christmas vacation because of the influenza epidemic, it was announced today.

Officials said the institution would shut down on Wednesday instead of Friday as scheduled, and until that day the students will be restricted to South Hadley, as far as possible. Chapel exercises, also, until that chapel exercises, appealed to students to exercise unusual care because of the influenza epidemic, avoiding all contacts as far as possible, foregoing the movies and resorting to "home entertainment."

"The decision to close the college early did not meet with favor from the girls," Commander George H. Rigelow, who declared it to be unjustified.

It would seem that this closing might increase the epidemic of closing schools and colleges which is sweeping the country and which may be more virulent than the disease, Mr. Rigelow stated.

"The closing of schools, except in the isolated rural community, is of no value in preventing the spread of the disease," he said.

"Influenza cases reported to the State department from December 1 to December 15 number 39, compared to 18 cases for the first 15 days in December, 1927."

OVERCOME AT MILK ST. FIRE

One man was overcome and slight damage caused by a fire of mysterious origin, discovered this evening at 7:45 o'clock, in the Oliver Building, 141 Milk st., today.

Ernest Armand, a porter, was rendered unconscious by smoke while fighting the flames with an extinguisher. He was rescued by firemen and revived.

The blaze started in waste paper in a vacant room on the seventh floor and was discovered by Armand, who seized a hand extinguisher and tackled the flames himself. Firemen were notified of his plight by Frederick L. Hawkes and Richard McIntyre, occupying offices on the same floor.

Boys Plot to Blow Up Train for 'Boom'

Worcester, Dec. 15 (AP)—Boys attending the Middlesex ave. school who were found to have a quantity of dynamite in their possession, told a detective today they had planned to put it on the tracks of the Boston & Albany Railroad near the Hamilton st. bridge.

The boys told him, he said, that they wanted "to hear the dynamite boom as the train passed over it."

Lippe-Lipski Isn't A Talker; She's A Real Genius

Washington, Dec. 15 (AP)—Patent rights on three inventions have been received by Princess Elaine von der Lippe-Lipski.

One is for an automobile headlight which is claimed to throw a light which is claimed to throw a strength of other lights about it. The princess said this was accomplished by the use of a cell containing rotted selenium and that in daytime the sun's rays would affect the headlight to such an extent that it would give no light.

Another of her inventions is a vacuum incased hogshead barrel which is said to enable meats and other perishable articles to be kept without ice for as long as six months and the princess asserted her other invention, a self-operating 22-reel capacity motion picture machine, would do away with the necessity for operators.

LEAGUE APPEAL TO BOLIVIA IS COMING TO U. S.

Lugano, Switzerland, Dec. 15 (AP)—Making a big departure in the routine of the League of Nations, the League Council decided this afternoon to send copies of a new peace appeal addressed to Bolivia and Paraguay, to the governments of all American countries, including the United States, which are not members of the league.

The list includes the United States, Brazil, Ecuador, Mexico and Costa Rica.

The appeal to Bolivia and Paraguay emphasize that they have recognized their obligations under the league covenant and cites to them Article XII. This article declares that league members, in case any dispute arises which is liable to lead to a rupture, will submit the matter to arbitration, to judicial settlement, or to an inquiry by the league council.

It obligates the signatories not to resort to war until three years after a decision or report is made.

BRITAIN PLOTS TO RULE SEAS, SAYS M'NUTT

New York, Dec. 15 (INS)—"Whether Great Britain or the United States is to be the master of this nation's destiny is the question at issue in strengthening the American navy," Paul V. McNutt, national commander of the American Legion, declared today at a luncheon of the Foreign Policy Association.

McNutt asserted that instead of the United States maintaining a naval parity with Great Britain, as provided in the Washington agreement of 1922, this nation "has been maneuvered into falling below Great Britain, and is now only equal to Japan."

"The relative naval strength now stands, Great Britain 5, United States 3, and Japan 3," he said.

McNutt said the issue is "a question of the freedom of the seas."

"It is a question of whether Great Britain will continue to dictate in time of war where she shall trade and how we shall trade," he said.

"It caused the war of 1812. It occurred in the World War, and while the international blockade by the grand fleet caused discussions between England and America, Great Britain searched our ships and maintained the blockade in her own way. The Germans, by themselves, by interfering with the free navigation of countries, brought this country into the war."

"Great Britain will always dictate trade by sea in time of war so long as she maintains her supremacy as she has in the past. She has gained this supremacy since the World War by failing to keep the spirit of the Washington disarmament conference and by outmaneuvering us in successive diplomatic moves.

"A United States navy equal in strength to that of Great Britain does not mean that we intend to fight the British fleet."

Reinhart Resigns Honor at Harvard

Robert Reinhart, Harvard senior, storm center of Harvard's Gold Coast since class election, today resigned as chairman of the class album committee.

The resignation was announced by R. W. Thayer, chairman of the senior offices nominating committee. No reason for the action was stated, but Reinhart has been a storm center since his election.

Reinhart was elected chairman by a popular vote. He had not been nominated. After the names were announced by the nominating committee a group of his friends submitted Reinhart's and his election resulted.

Life for Radio Board

Washington, Dec. 15 (AP)—A bill to extend the life of the Federal Radio Commission for another year was introduced today by Chairman Watson of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee.

HOOVER AND ARGENTINE LEADERS MEET

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN, International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Buenos Ayres, Dec. 15—President-elect Hoover awoke today to find all the papers of this city hailing the speech delivered for him last night by Ambassador Henry P. Fletcher.

Mr Hoover's speech stressed the fact that the world was on the brink of a "new era" of industry and democracy in which the Argentine would take an eminent place among the leaders of the western world.

The speech was delivered at a state banquet held at the president's palace. Mr. Hoover did not make the speech himself because President Irigoyen has made it a hard and fast rule never to speak in public utterance. He made no speech of welcome so Mr. Hoover could not reply.

However, Mr. Fletcher, now ambassador to Italy, formerly ambassador to Chile and a popular figure in South America, read the speech Mr. Hoover had written en route to this city.

This morning various Argentine leaders in business, politics and other fields visited Mr. Hoover and conferred with him regarding the particular problems in their field of endeavor.

The President-elect was to attend a luncheon tendered by the intendente of the Province of Buenos Aires after he had received his visitors.

GALA PERFORMANCE.

The cream of the social and dramatic elite of the "Paris of the Americas" will gather tonight at a gala performance given in Mr. Hoover's honor in the famous Colon Opera House.

The press here is generally agreed at Mr. Hoover and President Irigoyen are in complete harmony on all matters concerning both the United States and the Argentine following their two-hour conference behind closed doors yesterday.

After the banquet the President accompanied Mr. Hoover to the American embassy, where they remained for another half an hour.

Then Mr. Hoover personally escorted the President to his motor car despite the latters' remonstrance that such a courtesy was unnecessary.

ROTHSTEIN CASE SUSPECT TO SURRENDER

Hyman ("Gilly") Biller, wanted for the murder of Arnold Rothstein and hunted here at the request of New York police, today was reported to be planning to give himself up to the district attorney in New York or Boston.

Biller, who is one of four indicted for the slaying of the notorious gambler, is a former resident of Lynn. Information in the hands of Lynn authorities indicated that he was "hiding out" here.

It could be learned, however, arrangements to give himself up to a representative of the district attorney's office in Boston or Lynn.

Asked to confirm or deny a report that representatives of Biller were in communication with him regarding surrender, Banton today replied that he "makes any statements himself, and members of the district attorney's staff were also "mum."

Circulars describing the former Boston man have been sent to all police departments in the United States and Canada and parts of Mexico, but the rumor has persisted that police have refrained from secret information that he is in the east and has at least been in and out of Boston since the hunt for him began.

Biller was payoff man for Mr. Maas on the race tracks and was known as one of the "Rothstein crowd."

2 ESCAPE FIRE IN SO. BOSTON

Cut off by fire and smoke from the stairs leading from a third-story bedroom, where he had gone to awaken his father, Leo Travers of Dorchester ave. and D st., South Boston, leaped 15 feet from a window today, then slid down a sloping roof to the sidewalk and safety.

The father, Martin Travers, managed to escape by the stairway.

The fire started in a kitchen coal hod on the first floor. Thomas Kelley was cut about the face by a wrecking tool in the hands of a fellow-member of the crew of Ladder 4. Damage was estimated at $200.

Ah, Yes, Raising Merry Hades

While the departed heroes of history are having a jolly time aboard "The Houseboat on the Styx," at the Colonial, a mysterious tapping is heard. "One moment!" hisses Sherlock Holmes, "that's Conan Doyle, he never lets me alone; he signals: 'come at once and bring eighteen new plots.'"

STAGE AND SCREEN

It Was Greatly Exaggerated

Sil-Vara, author of "Caprice," at the Hollis, would much rather write his own obituary. An author of similar name committed suicide and the news was flashed over the wire that the noted Viennese critic and writer had killed himself. Sil-Vara hopes the incident will not recur without his consent.

LOCAL RIALTO PREPARES FOR HOLIDAY; FLOOD OF NOVELTY HANGS IN THE OFFING

THE ALBUM, the one with the deep red plush and the shiny brass clasps, yielded this family portrait of Alfred Lunt and his charming wife, Lynn Fontanne, the pair who will do "Caprice" for the Theatre Guild next week at the Hollis.

ELLEN MAHAR apparently believes in looking as cheerful as possible before donning a more sober demeanor for "The Eternal Magdalene," next week's new one at the St. James.

HENELOPE HUBBARD, as one of "The Royal Family," will give you an idea of what a famous actress does with all her spare time—at home. Coming December 25 to the Wilbur.

GABY FAY does all that gay spirits and artistic excellence can do in telling you just what it is that makes "Marigold" the impish ingenue you see at Mr. Clive's Copley Theater.

THIS FATAL POWER that lurks in the shining eye of Mr. Hamtree Harrington is vividly expressed in just such a scene. He can't help it! The afflicted party is Harriet Calloway and you'll find both in "Blackbirds" at the Tremont.

DRAMA YIELDS TO SEASONAL SLUMP

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

THESE are the dull, drab days of the theater. With four of the downtown houses locked and shuttered for a week, it may be conceded that the holiday spirit of glad tidings and great joy has completely skipped one of the most worthy of our institutions. Christmas buying and playshop prosperity, as usual, are not on easy terms and the theaters have yielded—partially. The Shuberts, generally the most potent of impresarios in times of stress and worry, have this season totally resigned the field to the opposition. This may be looked upon, in any event, as a magnificent gesture in thrift and expediency.

ON the other side of the street, business proceeds as usual, tempered, of course, by the absence of Christmas shoppers. Nevertheless, the Theater Guild's subscription battalion is holding a firm line at the Hollis, shifting its attack on Monday from "The Guardsman" to "Caprice," another comedy from the Old World. At the Tremont, "Blackbirds" clings to its faith in Santa Claus and, judging from reports, it will prove a faith untarnished by disappointment. John Hazzard et als, comprising "The Houseboat on the Styx," face the doubtful week-before-Christmas at the Colonial unafraid and joining lustily in carols to Noel. That, friends, is courage sublime.

THE drama of the past week, however, has not been without its interesting interludes—let's call 'em speculative specifics, box office tonics. Most important, by wide measure, has been the call of art so nobly responded to by that distinguished statesman of Essex County, the Hon. Andrew J. (Boss) Gillis, chief magistrate of the thriving city of Newburyport. An invitation to lend his talents to the declining days of "A Connecticut Yankee" found him willing, even eager, to share the joys and sorrows of trudging Thespians. He trudged (by motor) nightly from the tide-water shores of the Merrimac to the Majestic and uttered his phillpic.

IT was not in the character of King Arthur's time that Mr. Gillis laid a heavy but helping hand upon Mark Twain's dramatic story. Not a bit of it! It was Mr. Gillis, in person, substituting for the customary curtain speech, relieving William Gaxton from an onerous duty. Folded draperies of rich purple contrived the background; Mr. Gillis, in unpressed brown mufti, faced his people and dropped those bits of wisdom for which he is best known—even if not understood. Almost sacredly he spoke of Mark Twain. "They called him a fool," reminded Mr. Gillis, "and they called me a fool. Yet here we are, both speaking from the same platform."

AND in this manner the theater moves forward in its bolstering devices; subscription lists for the devoted among the higher arts and statesmen of local quality for sagging days of a well spent musical. Mr. Gillis solemnly faced his audience for a parting word. It possessed intriguing dramatic appeal. "When you pass through Newburyport," and he raised a quivering finger, "don't fail to buy your gasoline from Bossy."

Circus Girl

PEGGY SICKLE is but one of the pictorial supplements to Joe Cook's "big top" show, "Rain or Shine," coming to the Shubert.

FAGAN ROLLS HIS OWN

Usually a man who makes a reputation in the theater does so because he excels in some one branch. He is either an actor or an author, a producer, a director or a scenic designer. Rarely do you find anyone who can do everything.

But you do find James B. Fagan, whose comedy about Samuel Pepys, "And So to Bed," will be seen at the Plymouth beginning Christmas Day matinee, one who is both a jack and master of all the theatrical trades.

It is many years since he was an actor, but he started that way. He is known throughout England as a producer and also as an author. His plays have been produced all over the civilized world. And he's a scenic designer, as well.

"And So to Bed" is Mr. Fagan's production throughout—a sort of a one-man show. He wrote it, he produced it first in London, and he designed the scenic settings and costumes.

"And So to Bed" is a comedy which does not rely for its interest on either settings or the personages presented on the stage, for it is replete with funny situations that have kept English theatergoers chuckling for a year and which repeated its London success for six months at the Bijou theater in New York.

Looking Ahead

DECEMBER 24—
"Jim, the Penman" at the Colonial.
"The Family Upstairs" at the St. James.
"Laffin' Thru'" at the Gayety.

DECEMBER 25—
"The Royal Family" at the Wilbur.
Joe Cook in "Rain or Shine" at the Shubert.
"And So To Bed" at the Plymouth.
"Cafe De Danse" at the Majestic.
National Opera Company at the Boston Opera House.

DECEMBER 31—
"The Whispering Gallery" at the Copley.

NEXT WEEK'S NEW BILLS

HOLLIS—"Caprice," a play by Sil-Vara, formerly titled "Playing at Love." First time in America. Adapted from the Hungarian by Philip Moeller. A comedy of love's uncertainties. In the cast are Alfred Lunt, Geneva Harrison, Caroline Newcomb, Ernest Cossart, Leonard Loan, Lily Cahill, Lynn Fontanne and Douglass Montgomery. Settings by Aline Bernstein; staged by Philip Moeller. Produced by the Theater Guild.

* * *

ST. JAMES—(Stock) "The Eternal Magdalene," a play by Robert McLaughlin. Once served as starring medium for Julia Arthur and Emmett Corrigan. For the St. James presentation, Ellen Mahar and John Warner take the leading roles; others in the cast are Adrienne Earl, George R. Taylor, Don Beddoe and John Junior. Settings by Ernest Rand; staged by John McKee.

GAYETY—(Burlesque) "Ginger Girls," musical revue, with vaudeville bits and other features. In the cast are Harry Clexx, who is featured; Vinnie Phillips, Ritzie Phillips, Fritzie White, Al Baker and Freddie Walker. The usual dancing and singing chorus attends. Staged by Mr. Clexx; produced by Sam Raymond.

Origin of the Charleston in Elephant's Walk!

Dave Chasen, one of Joe Cook's lieutenants in "Rain or Shine," coming to the Shubert, who gets more laughs out of a silly arm-waving gesture than many comedians can get out of their entire repertoire of tricks, has been revealed as the creator of the Charleston.

He vows that he originated the Charleston 26 years ago, when with the Barnum and Bailey circus. One night Chasen and a companion were sitting around the dining tent discussing the animals. Dave asked his friend if he had ever noticed the peculiar walk of an elephant. There is no record of the latter having answered. But Chasen, being a natural mimic, went through the contortions of an elephant walking—and there was the dance!

Popular Priced Opera in Hub on Christmas Day

An interesting experiment in grand opera is to be made at the Boston Opera House beginning Christmas night. Maurice Frank, who has been presenting good music in New York, at popular prices, will present a series of standardized operas at very low prices.

It will be a treat not only for the many music students, but for all those who love to hear the famous operas who have been unable to do so on account of forbidding tariffs.

The repertoire for the first week will be as follows: Christmas night, "Aida"; Wednesday matinee, "La Traviata"; Wednesday night, "Il Trovatore"; Thursday night, "Rigoletto"; Friday night, "Forza del Destino"; Saturday matinee, "Faust"; Saturday night, "Pagliacci, and Cavalleria Rusticana."

BAY RUM RUNNER

JACK HAZZARD, as Captain Kidd turned bootlegger, is forced to the shame of guzzling Florida water and good old fashioned eau de cologne to keep his spirits up. "Houseboat on the Styx," Colonial.

'Diary' Maid

ROBERTA BEATTY will help bring Samuel Pepys' own diary to life in "And So to Bed" on Christmas night at the Plymouth.

REMORSE OF CONSCIENCE

Since "Jim, the Penman," which will be revived on Christmas Eve at the Colonial, was the first play in America to center about the figure of a gentleman criminal, in this case, Jim Ralston, the forger, it caused an inordinate amount of comment.

The play is the story of a respected member of London society, who maintains his expensive establishment and family by writing other people's names on cheques and such convenient documents. It so happened that one of the most prominent bankers of San Francisco was in a situation corresponding to that of the play; and the real James Ralston was occupying a stage box at the Baldwin Theater when the criminal adventures of the fictitious forger first appeared on the San Francisco stage.

It was noted with interest that the banker left the audience before the performance was finished. As a matter of fact no one saw him again—alive. Some days later the tide washed him back upon the beach below the Cliff House, and the affairs of his bank were discovered to be in a distressing condition. It is needless to say that "Jim, the Penman," played to record-breaking business in San Francisco.

HOWARD BILL

Art Gardner and his "Merry Whirl" burlesque troupe will come to the Howard next week. A wrestling carnival tops the stage vaudeville bill. Pictures are also shown.

Film Futures

DECEMBER 21—
David Rollins in "The Air Circus," and "Peter Pan" (morning's only) at the Metropolitan.

DECEMBER 24—
"Prep and Pep" at the Keith Memorial.
Monte Blue in "White Shadows in the South Sea" at Loew's State.
"Gang War" at the Keith-Albee.

DECEMBER 31—
Vilma Banky in "The Awakening" at Loew's State.

BRIGHT FILM SHOWN AT THE 'MET'

After seeing "Someone to Love," the new film at the Metropolitan, it is easy to believe a certain story they tell about it in the busy film marts of the trade.

According to the whispers, the director, F. Richard Jones, is quite a smarty. They say he told his stars, those good-looking youngsters, Charles Rogers and Mary Brian, that the film was terribly serious and had to be acted accordingly.

Three solvers of the production—or so they say—were "tipped," the comedians, Jack Oakie and William Austin, and the title-writer, George Marion. The youngsters, who have all the close-ups and "serious" business, perform in earnest, while the others are having a gay old time. And the result, whether or not all this is true, is by way of being a vastly amusing and bright photoplay.

Mr. Marion jashes continuously in the subtitles, and that unregenerate pair, Messrs. Oakie and Austin, certainly take the picture right away from the "stars." If given half a chance, real actors such as these can be depended upon to do this little thing every time.

The business of the plot is trifling and highly improbable, merely a few odd details that happen to some clerks in a music store. But, barring a rather silly "chase" scene near the end, the film manages to skid merrily along. It certainly looks like somebody is getting a first class kidding.

On stage at the "Met" there are the Roonéys, Pat and Marion Bent, as good as ever, and the usual diverting handshow.

Another film, and a remarkable one it is, is the UFA reel showing a thrilling fight to the death between a mongoose and a cobra.

HAYES' RECITAL

Roland Hayes will give his second recital of the season in Boston, in Symphony Hall, on Sunday afternoon, December 30. With this appearance he will resume his tour of America from which he is taking two weeks' Christmas vacation. Mr. Hayes will sing numbers of Haydn and Berlioz; a French group; a group of songs translated from the Chinese and Japanese, and a group of Negro Spirituals.

MODERNS AND CLASSIC AT SYMPHONY

By MOSES SMITH

Those who like the current cacophonies that pass for music have a good time at this week's Symphony concerts, for the program has two works that are played for the first time anywhere, and one, Prokofieff's Violin Concerto, which is not exactly a standard classic. If the connoisseurs are "fed up" with innocent trifles like Beethoven's "Pastorale" Symphony they need not hear it, for Mr. Koussevitzky has conveniently placed it after the intermission. In fact, the hall emptied appreciably before this symphony at the first concert.

The early-goers, not hearing the symphony, missed a fine performance, one of Mr. Koussevitzky's many inspired readings. Consequently, even though this is not one of Beethoven's greatest works, it atoned for the dullness of much of the opening half of the program—and we are old-fashioned enough to call such music dull.

Martinu, the Czech rebel, opened with a piece called "La Symphonie." A year ago he was introduced to the Symphony Concerts with "La Bagarre," in which the composer gave evidence of great gusto, enormous rhythmic vitality. The same qualities are evident in lesser degree in the latest work. There are measures of appalling harshness, and in contrast an English horn solo that is almost "sweet." If you accept his premises—that is to say, his themes—his development is extremely logical.

Martinu seems to have something to say, to be getting somewhere. We cannot offer the same opinion of Aaron Copland, the young American whose "Two Pieces for String Orchestra" were heard for the first time. An amusing article in the program notes offered us escape from boredom. The audience shared our feelings.

The Prokofieff concerto, first heard here with Richard Burgin as soloist three years ago, was beautifully played by Leo Luboshuts, who deserved the tremendous ovation she received. She loosed off this terribly difficult music with amazingly accurate intonation, with flawless style, and with beautiful tone when the music permitted. Prokofieff begins the first and third movements with lovely melodies, and then, ashamed of himself, proceeds to make noise.

THE MICHIGAN KIDS

A GAME OF CARDS seems to be something important to Conrad Nagel and Renee Adoree in "The Michigan Kid" at the Keith-Albee. From the title, you may suppose he's teaching the gentle art of cheating.

THE LAST PRECINCT

ELECTION RETURNS, or something like that, occupy Charles Sellon and Bebe Daniels in "What a Night" at the Keith Memorial. This is a newspaper story, but where are all the sleepy reporters?

The "Born Actress" Enters!

In "The Royal Family," that amusing play about actors which comes soon to the Wilbur, old Mrs. Cavendish boasts that in all her fifty years on the stage she has never missed a performance. Even the birth of her famous daughter, Julie, disturbed no play date—it happened during Holy Week!

STAGE AND SCREEN

From the Second Carload?

Archie Mayo, who directed "On Trial," at the Olympia and Fenway, was in the Navy with Paul Whiteman. Then, Paul had a tremendous girth and Archie a silver-toned tenor. "Now," writes Archie, "Paul is losing his waistline and all I have left to remind me of those days is an Old Gold baritone."

COMEDY'S BROAD GRINS SOFTEN DRAMA'S DISTRESS AS NEW FILMS TAKE TO SCREEN

SHE DIDN'T KNOW IT WAS LOADED! Ah, yes, this is another one of those accidents. But soft! Montagu Love is generally the villain and Lillian Gish is always the heroine. Figure it out yourself. "The Wind," at Loew's State.

SOMEWHERE IN FRANCE ought to describe this tableau. Matty Kemp and Sally Eilers are surprised in "The Good Bye Kiss" and there is now a brief pause for station announcements. At the Modern and Beacon.

ARMS AND THE MAN. What, no man? Well, here are the arms, the man can't be far off. Madge Bellamy in "Mother Knows Best" at the Scollay Square Olympia.

HAY FEVER? Perhaps not. It looks more like the lack of "Someone to Love," wherein Jack Oakie and William Austin have the greatest difficulty with women, at the Metropolitan.

THERE'S MANY A SLIP twixt cup and lip. And there's many a slipon shown at breakfast. Holmes Herbert and Lois Wilson in a neighborly attitude in "On Trial," Olympia and Fenway.

TALKERS RETRIEVE THE FORGOTTEN

By LEO GAFFNEY

THE way the old-timers are coming back to the screen is, as you might say, a caution—a caution for the young-timers to look to their laurels. The talkers, requiring as they do the well-modulated voice and the clear speaker, are to blame. One by one, names half forgotten are beginning to reappear on the playbills, while, on the other hand, names of more recent favorites are slowly fading from view. In the new talker, "On Trial," next week's occupant of the Olympia and Fenway screens, you find Pauline Frederick, Bert Lytell, Lois Wilson, Edmund Breese and Edward Martindel. Every one of these is in there" because of one thing—voice.

A YEAR ago all these players had ceased being "featured" except by those nondescript producers on the outer edge of the game who make the "quickies." Now, each has a new lease on professional life, an absolutely fresh chance to regain and even surpass the triumphs of former years.

IN the current Metropolitan picture, "Someone to Love," there is another "old-timer" who has come back, James Kirkwood. The last time we saw Mr. Kirkwood on the screen was almost pathetic. It was nearly four years ago in "That Royle Girl," made, we greatly regret to say, by D. W. Griffith. The picture was fearful fodder and Mr. Kirkwood had one of the most ridiculous roles ever wished on an actor. The "Royle Girl" was a dismal flop, and it apparently so disgusted Mr. Kirkwood that he abandoned the films and went back to the stage whereon he has abided until now.

THE coming of the talkers has divided the present Hollywood favorites in two groups, those who can speak lines well and those who can't. The former are fairly secure, the latter are desperately trying to do something about it. Many of these, we understand, have excellent speaking voices and a good knowledge of how to use them, but the recording apparatus is strangely hostile. Unaccountably, some of the best voices have a certain bronchial effect on the loud speakers and, as yet, nobody knows the answer.

EVEN an artist like Wallace Beery, so the story goes, is one of the out-of-lucks. And Mr. Beery sings bass! Nevertheless, we are backing Mr. Beery to beat the game, and we think he has the right idea in boldly stepping out for a vaudeville tour. Others in similar circumstances are reported to be doing the same. What a business! Stage actors are flying into the films as the filmsters are flying out.

* * *

EVERY once in so often, those take-it-easy fellows, our private despatch-bearers, shock us by actually attending to business. Late last night, one of the apprentices (who has not yet learned to stall) came galloping up to headquarters, drew rein, dismounted and brought out of his hat—what do you think?—neither bunny nor beanstalk but a communication that can only be described as important. The note, full of grammatical errors and hidden meaning, read: "Pathe signs Somerset Maugham to write talkie which Ina Claire will act in." Now that may or may not mean much to you but, personally, we feel that there's something to live for. And we think that Pathe's trademarked rooster has at last something to crow about.

JAZZ QUEEN AT KEITH'S

"I'm the last of the red hot mamma," sings Sophie Tucker, who will appear at the B. F. Keith Memorial Theater next week. Although she is the "last," she is also the first of "the red hot mammas." Way back when Irving Berlin was writing the first jazz tunes, the famous Sophie, who was then quite young, stood on a stage in her home town of Hartford, Ct., and showed people for the first time a syncopated sway. She taught America the meaning of "hot jazz," and then she taught England.

Sophie Tucker

She is just back from London, where she has been acting as hostess at the "Kit Kat Club." While in London Miss Tucker also appeared in vaudeville. She is so popular with her English friends that when she opened in New York for the first time this season many of them were in the audience with large parties.

"People tell me that Englishmen can't see a joke," say Sophie. "But they laugh just as hard and at just the same jokes as any of the Broadway boys I know."

Stage Talent at Embassy Night Club for New Year's

The new Embassy Night Club of Boston will celebrate the coming of the New Year with a special program. From New York there will appear for this occasion the Farrell O'Neil Orchestra and its associated entertainers. Walker O'Neil is in charge of the music, and has arranged an eventful program. Large French dolls will be distributed as souvenirs. The Embassy will strive to outdo itself for this, its first New Year's celebration. O'Neil is hard at work booking the contributing artists and arranging the acts.

New Russian Film to Show Soon in Symphony Hall

"The End of St. Petersburg" opens an eight-day run in Symphony Hall Sunday, December 30, showing the grim veil of mystery that shrouded old Russia. V. J. Pudovkin, young Russian director, spared no possibility to bring out the dramatic events just before the World War and the later overthrow of the Russian Empire. There are more than 10,000 persons participating.

This picture comes direct from the largest picture theater in the world, the Roxy in New York. In booking this film "Roxy" made the following statement: "The End of St. Petersburg' makes our American pictures seem childish, obvious and scarcely worth the showing. This is the sort of thing which the American films must work toward. That is why I booked 'The End of St. Petersburg.'"

BOWDOIN SQUARE

Corinne Griffith, in "Outcast" is the feature film for next week at the Bowdoin Square. Marion Davies in "Show People" will also be shown, and a bill of vaudeville.

WHAT'S WHAT With Shows REMAINING

"The Housebout on the Styx" at the Colonial. (Second week.) In which history's notables, from Adam to P. T. Barnum, become members of the same club. The last week.

Dentistry's Crowning Touch

In the new edition of "The Mustard Plaster," Dr. Rockwell resumes his discussion of The Teeth. He charges that buck teeth are directly traceable to dollar-dentistry, and that a vegetarian's molars have roots. He further asserts that a painter's teeth are invariably found covered with enamel. Well!

STAGE AND SCREEN

Either the One or the Other

The Mutual Burlesquer, that chatty little paper of the Wheel, is given also to philosophy as well as humor. If you tell a woman a secret, it states, you are either a fool or a diplomatist. If you wish it kept, it further states, you may call yourself the former; if spread, you are certainly the latter.

O'BRIEN GETS CALLED TO CHEER UP

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Dec. 15—Thank goodness, George O'Brien is to have a chance to be merry, blithe and gay. He has been playing so many heavy dramas and looking so morose for so long that we are glad he can take advantage of his youth and be himself. He can do just that in "The Son of Anak," a football story in which George probably will be called on to emulate William Haines, whose heroism in film football and baseball games has made him almost the official college hero.

David Butler, who so successfully engineered Nick Stuart through Europe, will direct O'Brien and Farrell MacDonald will play the father. Martha Sleeper probably will play the girl in the case, but this may be a little premature. And far be it from me to hand out roles until they are definitely set.

ENTER the auburn-haired serial queen, Heretofore Pathe has given the preference to blondes—witness Pearl White, Alleen Ray and Gladys McConnell. But times have a way of changing and now Ethlyn Clair, whose hair is of the titian shade recommended by our earlier artists and poets, has been engaged to play the featured feminine role in the new 10-episode thriller, "Queen of the North Woods."

Miss Clair, who has not only recently joined the Hollywood film colony, seems to have started out on the right foot. She begins work under the direction of Spencer Bennett, Pathe's serial director, immediately after finishing with Warner Brothers, where she played opposite Monte Blue. Walter Miller is her leading man and Frank Lacteen, well known serial player, is in the cast. This serial business is in a class by itself.

IN these days of talkies and rapid-fire changes an actor comes pretty near doing what he is told to do. Two months ago Gary Cooper probably would have had a temperamental outburst if he had been told that he was cast in support of Emil Jannings. Today he has forgotten that order like a lamb. The talkies are certainly taming the film people.

Robert Castle was slated for the role originally but his youth was given as the reason for not using him in the picture. The part played by Cooper is second to that of Jannings and, like the role of Lewis Stone in "The Patriot," is almost as great as that of Jannings.

We are going to see great changes this coming year and the sensible actor will take orders like a good soldier until the films have passed.

LITA GREY CHAPLIN bade her fiance, Roy d'Arcy, a fond and affectionate farewell when she went to Omaha to continue her vaudeville appearances. But while Lita is performing in Omaha, d'Arcy will be doing his own special brand of villainy, in the film, I mean, of course, for the Fox company.

He plays a heavy in "Girls Gone Wild," the Sue Carol and Nick Stuart drama. Mathew Betz is another of the reasons girls make mistakes (I still mean in the films). Hedda Hopper, who lingers in New York, held there by the fascinations of the stage, has been invited to play one of the leading roles. But Hollywood will not see Hedda, I fear, for some weeks.

DISCIPLES OF MUSIC, DANCE AND THE DRAMA

EVA VON BERNE, new screen discovery, a/ds John Gilbert with the love-making in "The Masks of the Devil" at the Orpheum.

TRINI, just Trini, is one of the principal dancers in the spectacular "Cafe de Danse," coming with Christmas to the Majestic.

BEATRICE EATON, contralto, appears with the National Opera company which starts Christmas night at the Opera House.

MARGUERITE ST. JOHN is one of the star cast which revives "Jim the Penman" at the Colonial on the night before Christmas.

VAUDEVILLE CHANGES

KEITH MEMORIAL—Sophie Tucker, last of the red hot mamas, in songs new and old; "The Collegians," an octette of young and versatile performers; Brown and Whittaker in "A Laugh or Two"; other turns and films.

LOEW'S ORPHEUM— Private C. K. Slack, hero of the World War, appears in conjunction with a film called "Gold Clowns"; Ross Wyse, Jr., in "Kidding Father," a skit; Keller Sisters and Lynch, "three voices in perfect harmony"; Romaine and Castle in "Dark and Light Comedy"; other turns and films.

KEITH-ALBEE — Melle Dunham and "Gram" will have charge of the Christmas Pantomime; Lestra Lamonte in "Paper Creations"; "The Varsity Varieties," a tabloid revue; other turns and films.

SCOLLAY—Jack Wilson in his "Nonsensical Revue"; Le Vine and Evans in the comedy skit, "The Life Saver"; Sally Sarkis and her dance revue, "Youth, Speed, Pep and Grace"; other turns and films.

OLYMPIA & FENWAY—Vitaphone and Movietone acts and presentations, also films.

Continental Melodrama Headed for Majestic

"Cafe de Danse," continental melodrama will be presented by Ben Bernie and Phil Baker at the Majestic beginning Christmas matinee.

"Cafe de Danse" has been a standout by Clarke Silvernail from the French play, "La Maison de Danse," by Charles Muller and Pierre Nozier. The play has been successful in Paris where the leading role was played by Pelair. "Cafe de Danse" is an elaborate production, based on the night club life of Spain, and portrays the life behind the scenes of the most notorious of Spanish cafes.

Featuring Trini, foremost dancer, and including Leonard Ceeley, who played the title role in "The Student Prince" and "My Princess," the cast contains a large list of favorites.

Art and Business on Common Ground

By THERESA HELBURN,
Executive Director, the Theater Guild, at the Hollis

Theresa Helburn

There has been much talk especially since the appearance of district attorney censorship in New York several years ago, of saving the theater, of reviving the stage to the high standards which seem falling away before an onslaught of too much commercialism, too much exploitation of those elements which are not in good taste. It seemed that producers and playwrights had been forgetting that the primal law of the drama is "the wages of sin is death."

These reformers—well, they are not so much reformers as they are revivers of good taste—have suggested many aids which they believe will elevate the drama. Plans and campaigns are still being discussed, when it seems perfectly obvious that renewed, virile blood in the drama can come from only one source—the intelligent combination of art and business. Perhaps that is paradoxical for art and business, strictly speaking, are incompatible. Nevertheless, it is possible. Witness our own Theater Guild with more than 30,000 subscribers in New York and an equal number in other cities, including 6000 in Boston.

The Theater Guild has been mistakenly accused of being a highbrow art theater. Let me then frankly confess that we are none of us posing as pure artists in the theater. We know we cannot pretend to the experimental, individualistic, absolutely aristocratic position of the artist for whom nothing exists but his art. For us there are many other things to be considered—good acting, good producing, important things like an audience, trivial things like salaries, rents and union labor.

The Guild is a group organization, run by a board of managers. While there is one executive, none is supreme. All matters of policy are submitted to the board as a whole, also the choice of plays. The board is made up of a group of very diverse people—a banker, a lawyer, an actress, an artist, a producer and a playwright. Their personalities and attitudes to life vary widely—also their opinion of plays. They represent an audience in miniature. As individuals, God knows what extreme and wonderful things, what superb failures or successes we might stage, but as a group we generally approximate in miniature the taste of the public we exist for—not the public of the commercial theater, of chirpin farce, of melodrama, of comic opera, but the public that wants reality, sincerity and beauty—the only public we are trying to reach.

Original Score to Be Used for Handel's "Messiah"

At the approaching "Messiah" performances of the Handel and Haydn Society, Sunday afternoon, December 16, and Monday evening, the 17th, this work will be performed as nearly as possible in accordance with the orchestral accompaniment of Handel's day.

ENGLISH SINGERS

Music of Christmas, both religious and festive, by the great composers of old England, together with carols and arrangements of appropriate folk songs will give special beauty and significance to the concert of the English Singers which is to take place in Symphony hall on Christmas Sunday evening, December 23.

Dorchester, 1; Brighton, 0.
English, 1; Boston College high, 0.
Commerce 1; Charlestown, 0.
Jamaica Plain, 3; Trade, 0.
Hyde Park, 1; Mechanic Arts, 1.

By DICK McSWEENEY

Boston Latin School opened the Boston Schoolboy Hockey League at the Boston Arena today by defeating the South Boston High, 4 to 0.

Five other games followed, with Dorchester, Commerce, English, Jamaica Plain and Hyde Park scoring wins over their opponents.

Dorchester High took the measure of Brighton, 1 to 0. Latin beat South Boston, 4 to 0. English defeated Boston College high, 1 to 0. Jamaica Plain won from Trade School, 3 to 0, and Hyde Park scored a 2 to 1 victory over Mechanic Arts High.

Despite the fact that none of the teams had previous practice, the showing of the schoolboys was far better than was expected. Dorchester High, Commerce and Latin school gave promise this morning by their showing of being among the leaders in the race for the league title.

Hyde Park, by its perfect win over Mechanic Arts, looked the best of the district school teams and will give their city brothers plenty to think about before the season is old.

The teams will play at the Arena every Saturday until late in March, when the championship will be awarded.

Nick Tedesco, captain of the Boston College ice hockey team, will be unable to play for the Eagles this season because of a bad heart. This is according to announcement made today by Sonney Foley, B. C. coach, during practice session at the Arena.

It is believed that Art Morrissey will probably be elected captain of the team from the Heights.

MASS. COACHES TO NAME OWN OFFICIALS

The members of the Massachusetts Coaches' Association voted today to pick their own football officials in the future. Marion Roberts, Brockton High mentor, made the suggestion, and the other members went on record as being in favor of it.

The Roberts motion read as follows:

"That the schools wishing to do so form an association for the selection of officials for football. That each school submits its own list of approved officials which all schools shall vote upon without discussion.

"That a 75 per cent vote shall be required to approve an official. That the president of the association shall appoint a committee of three to assign officials to the games in which their schools shall participate."

Numerous speakers addressed the gathering, among them being Reggie Smith, coach at Boston University, who spoke on changes in defensive football since 1900 and illustrated his talk with blackboard diagrams, demonstrating the various defensive formations used by college teams in the last 28 years.

Arthur Sampson, coach at Tufts, also spoke. His topic was offensive football. Coach Sampson offered a series of nine plays which he said would be effective if carried out right.

Bodger Carroll, St. James High coach of Haverhill, asked Coach Sampson to illustrate some of the plays which Brown saw in the Army-Stanford game. The Tufts coach did so.

Among the school coaches present were Herb Collins, Medford High; Leander McDonald, Cambridge Latin; Tommy Murphy and Mitch Meivier, Rindge; Bodger Carroll, St. James; Henry Blake, Exeter; Jack Leary, Waltham; Bill Joyce, Lynn Classical; Charlie Downes, Arlington; Marcel Roberts, Brockton; Jim Mansfield, Haverhill; Dennie Gildes, Everett; Mark Devlin, Lawrence; Tony Lyons, Medford; Charlie Linehan, Rindge; Edward Goodreau, Malden; Charles McGuinness, Arlington High; Frank Burke, Stoughton; Edward Pigeon, Medford; Ralph Kendell, Medford; Tom Hines, Brookline.

Nurmi Denies He Will Turn "Pro"

New York, Dec. 15 (AP)—Paavo Nurmi, famous Finnish runner, arrived today on the Rochambeau for his second visit to America, dispelling immediately the mystery about his intentions by flatly asserting he had not turned professional and did not intend to do so.

Nurmi's broken-English consisted chiefly of one word, "Nope," but it was sufficient to answer definitely all questions fired at him by reporters eager to learn about reports that Nurmi was about to turn "pro" and race under the banner of Tex Rickard.

With this one word Paavo also declined the impromptu reception arranged by the French line at the pier.

Nurmi, while making positive denial he signed any "pro" contracts, or had any intention of forsaking the simon-pure ranks, was non-committal on plans for racing here.

He is expected to make several indoor appearances. A group of Finnish friends, including Hugo Gylling, who managed Paavo's 1925 tour of the United States, greeted the runner.

Nurmi ignored the ship stewards and carried his own baggage as he staggered from the ship with four big bags.

Cantowine Signs to Meet Ganson

Howard Cantowine, former University of Iowa football star, will meet Jack Ganson, claimant of the Lithuanian wrestling championship, in the feature bout of Paul Bowser's weekly tourney in the Grand Opera House next Thursday night.

Cantowine is known as the Iowa Thunderbolt. Last Thursday night he smacked Ned McGuire down at the Arena after a sensational display of wrestling. McGuire went down under the impact of Cantowine's flying tackle in the semifinal to the Sonnenberg-McLeod feature bout.

Ganson appeared here last year and beat a flock of first-class wrestlers, including himself on his head drawing cards in the East. This year he has done most of his wrestling in the Middle West, but, hearing of the big houses that are being drawn here, he decided to make an attempt to fight his way back into the large purses.

DONAHUE AND CANZONERI IN GO MONDAY

Jackie Donahue, gritty Roxbury featherweight, and Tony Canzoneri, former featherweight champion of the world, will head the all-star card of the Sharkey A. A. in Mechanics Building on Monday night.

Donahue and Canzoneri will battle over the 10-round route in the feature of a popular-priced show, which will also include a 10-rounder between Andy Martin of the South End and Johnny Drew of Worcester, another 10-rounder between Eddie Curley of the West End and Frankie Moore of the North End, hitter local rivals, and two shorter preliminary bouts.

Donahue will stand at the crossroads in his meeting with Canzoneri. A few years ago, he was regarded as the best amateur featherweight in the country. For the past year, he has been boxing here, punching his way through the preliminary boys and making of himself a popular favorite by his flashy fighting.

He stepped up into the main bout class once before and gave Chick Suggs a terrific argument, and after that brilliant showing, he whipped Johnny Shepard.

All-Eastern Team Leaves for Coast

Chicago, Dec. 15 (AP)—Members of the all-star Eastern team, which will clash with the West in the annual charity football game at San Francisco, assembled at Northwestern University today.

After receiving their outfits and a few signals from the coaches, Andy Kerr of Washington and Jefferson and Dick Hanley of Northwestern the 20 players will leave tonight for San Francisco. The game is to be played December 29.

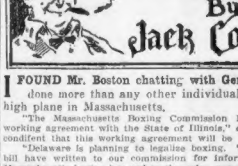
MR. BOSTON By Jack Conway



I FOUND Mr. Boston chatting with Gene Buckley who has done more than any other individual to keep boxing on a high plane in Massachusetts.

"The Massachusetts Boxing Commission has just entered into a working agreement with the State of Illinois," declared Buckley. "I feel confident that this working agreement will be beneficial to both States. "Delaware is planning to legalize boxing. Those persons behind the bill have written to our commission for information in regard to the Massachusetts boxing law and to the rules governing the game here. We shall be glad to give them the information desired.

"Our advice has also been sought by persons interested in legalizing boxing in New Hampshire.

Mr. Boston was pleased at this information.

"Massachusetts leads, the others follow," said the veteran laughingly. "I find that managers, boxers and promoters look to the Bay State as the leader in the boxing game. An open door policy, with a fair deal for all, have sent visitors away as boosters for the manner in which the game is conducted here."

TONY PALAZOLA moved along the press row to say a few kind things about Jackie Donahue, brilliant South Boston featherweight, who clashes with Tony Canzoneri in a ten-round bout at a Sharkey A. A. show at Mechanics Building on next Monday night.

"Donahue does not need a promoter as a booster," chirped Mr. Boston. "He does his own boosting when he tackles high class opposition in the ring. This 22-year-old youngster has given the fans a run for their money every time he has stepped into action in a Boston ring.

"Donahue can box and punch, while he is a fine ring general. He also has the happy faculty of moving forward every second he is in the ring.

"The South Boston featherweight gave one of the greatest exhibitions of fighting spirit ever seen a his recent tussle with Jerry Parker. Despite the fact he was fouled three times, Donahue persisted in fighting on while perched on his knees and unable to get up.

"Palazola tells me he has Andy Martin and Johnny Drew in the semifinal of ten rounds, while another ten-session affair will bring together Frankie Moore and Eddie Curley.

"The Sharkey A. A. intends to hold to its popular prices of from 50 cents to $3. This will not cause any ill feeling among the cash customers, who are occasionally entitled to a break.

"I WAS talking with Johnny Buckley at the Garden. Johnny brands as Stribling ballyhoo Tex Rickard's yarn about a Sharkey-Stribling bout at Miami, Fla. With a scarcity of heavyweight contenders of class, Rickard has been trying to stimulate public interest in Stribling. The latter has been a frightful box office flop in New York and it will require all of Rickard's ability to sell the Georgian to the public.

"Stribling's holding and grabbing style of boxing caused the fans in New York to snore on him. He only drew a $16,000 gate in New York in his last appearance there against Johnny Squires.

"*D*AN CARROLL will have Jim Maloney return to Wameti at once to resume training for his 10-round bout with Con O'Kelley, which will be staged in the New York Garden on next Friday night. Carroll says frequent bouts are responsible for Maloney's long winning surge.

"O'Kelley made a big hit here when he battled Jack Gagnon. It is to be regretted that the Maloney-O'Kelley will isn't being staged in the Boston Garden. It is likely that a large delegation of Boston fans will journey to Broadway to see Shamus and Con punch it out."

Record Entry for Bouts at St. Joe's

The St. Joseph's T. A. S. will hold another of its great series of amateur tournaments in Commercial Hall, Bowdoin square, tonight, when the season's record for number of entrants and number of bouts at any amateur show in the State will be broken.

Entries have been pouring in to Director William H. Cuddy all week, in every class from the flyweight to the heavyweight, and it seems a certainty that, for the first time this year, more than 32 bouts will be held in the little old Home of Action.

Otto Von Porat Sues Promoter for $50,000

Chicago, Dec. 15 (INS)—Otto Von Porat, the Norwegian heavyweight, has been damaged to the extent of $50,000 by Miqua Malloy, Chicago boxing promoter, according to Von Porat's claim in a suit on file here today.

The Norwegian contends posters carrying the information that "Hie Boy" Peterson defeated him twice is slanderous and unusually damaging to his reputation as a "big timer." Von Porat's petition characterizes Peterson as a "seventh rate fighter" who never has been seriously regarded as a contender for the heavyweight crown.

DEER SEASON IS POOREST IN MANY YEARS

By FRED C. LANE

What proved to be the poorest open season on deer which the hunters of this state have experienced, will end at sundown today.

And all failure can be laid to the bad weather conditions that existed the past two weeks when it was lawful to shoot the nimble-footed animals.

Reports coming into the State House today found approximately 1680 kills reported over a period of two weeks as compared with 1963 for one week in 1927. Lack of deer is not the reason advanced for the small kill, according to the game wardens throughout the State, for their early reports and the complaints of the farmers had all the earmarks of an exceptionally fine season.

DEER GOT BREAK

But such was not the case, partly due to the lack of snow, which is one of the essentials in hunting deer.

First of all, it was impossible to track the animal from its lair. The noisy woods made it possible for the deer to "wind" the hunter or hear his approach long before he came within shooting distance.

Timid as they are, and shot at so often the first few days, the deer took to the heavy woods, giving the gunner little chance to get home a vital shot.

Many were seen at a distance but that didn't help the promised steaks and stews. The usual "runs" to their drinking places and feeding grounds were avoided, leaving many an anxious gunner weak both from anxiety and cold.

The majority of the kills reported came from the western part of the state. The Cape counties held up to their usual average, but that's about all. A "kill" report from Essex County nowadays, almost needs investigation, so few are the deer in that locality. This is also true of game of every description that once inhabited that territory.

CAN SHOOT AT RABBITS

But the sportsman, like the Spartan, takes his bitter pill with his sweat meat and puts aside the gun for another year. Rabbits are the only lawful quadrupeds that still run unprotected and that kind of shooting becomes tiresome after a while.

Those aporting a gunning license, however, have few fish and a night at the New England Sportsman's Show, which takes place at Mechanics Building, January 16, to make up for their poor luck.

The ice in Massachusetts is hardly firm enough to stand any weight and it will be necessary to wait for better conditions before fishing can be considered.

Regardless of the weather, the Sportsman's Show will go on as scheduled and many interesting exhibits are in store for all. Advance information says that a live cow moose, two bears, deer of all description and a display of waterfowl, second to none will be on exhibition.

Besides pictures of wild animal life, a casting contest, and about every conceivable thing that would interest a sportsman will be on display. It promises to be the biggest ten-day meeting of the Isaac Walton of 1928.

IMPORTED WATERFOWL

Three hundred rare waterfowl, imported from Europe especially for the occasion, will furnish one of the very interesting features of the bird exhibit.

Every angler will be interested in what Bill Vogt and Chief Dowagiac, nationally known experts in the manipulation of the hook and line, have to offer. Both are friendly rivals for the world's championship angling title, and both will occupy the bright spots in the daily program.

In a special aquarium five specimens of trout, said to be the only five of their kind in the world, will be shown as a special feature of the New Brunswick display. New England sportsmen have had the opportunity to fish for two of these trout specs, and will be interested in the capers of the other three finny fellows.

The bold New Haven Eagles with Clarence Bowcher, official bad man of the Canadian American League, and Billy Boucher, the circuits' second high scorer, will meet Boston Tigers in Boston Arena at 8.30 tonight.

The winner will land at the top of the league.

The Tigers at present are a point behind Philadelphia Arrows in the race. The Arrows are inactive tonight and consequently Boston can gain undisputed possession of top place by beating the Eagles.

The Eagles themselves are in third place, only a point behind Boston, and they can tie for the lead by scoring over the followers of Eddie Powers.

To date the Tigers have tied the Eagles and beaten them in two games. In the first game at the Arena they came from behind to tie two goals to tie while in New Haven they captured the game, which was the roughest ever played in the rugged Nutmeg circuit.

In view of the roughness of that game Boston hockey fans are anticipating a rousted affair tonight and the biggest crowd in the history of Canadian-American league hockey here is expected.

The Tigers are ready for any kind of trouble. Captain Eddie Oatman, who was hurt in the Spring field game Tuesday, practiced with the team yesterday and is expected to take his place on defense.

Fonsi Contant will team with him at the points with Herb Rheaume in goal. The forward lines are intact, with Frank Waite, Johnny Loucks and Bob Taylor as first string and Clark Heyd, Eddie Burke and Sonny Manning, as second.

The Eagles will be at full strength with Billy Boucher, Marty Barry and Eddie Bouchard, all former New York Americans, on the forward line; Bowcher and Chris Speyer on defense and Norman Burmister in goal.

SHAMUS MALONEY goes marching on in his comeback campaign.

The South Boston heavyweight stopped courageous Andy Mitchell of California in six rounds before a crowd of 12,000 fans at the Boston Garden.

The show drew $24,471, which was another big house for the Garden. Maloney received $8157 which represented 33 1-3 per cent of the gate.

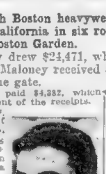
Mitchell was paid $4,382, which was 17½ per cent of the receipts.

Teddy Hayes, Mitchell's chef second, jumped into the ring and halted festivities when Mitchell, in a helpless condition, was backed against the ropes. A few more Maloney punches would have flattened the gallant-hearted Californian from the Coast.

Mitchell was outclassed, but went down fighting. He was dropped for counts of nine in the first and second rounds, while Referee Jack Sheehan counted to four when Andy was wrestled through the ropes in the fourth session.

Despite all this, Mitchell was dangerous at all times. He blazed away with left and right hand socks even when Maloney was a mile out in front. The youthful Californian fought along the lines that no contest is lost until the final sock has been delivered.

In the fourth round, after taking a terrific hammering, Mitchell landed with a terrific right to the chin which shook Maloney to the soles of his feet. Shamus, though, came back fighting harder than ever. This is the way of the new Maloney.



Jack Conway

MALONEY'S knockdowns gave him healthy margins in the first two rounds. Each knockdown was scored by a left hook to the chin.

Shamus didn't do so well when he let drive with right handers. He missed a great deal, and also left himself wide open for Mitchell's left jabs and hooks.

Andy scored with plenty of solid left and right hand belts to the head and body, but they failed to take the steam out of Maloney. The latter was in the ring to win by a knockout, and the more often Mitchell belted him, the harder he fought.

Mitchell did his best work in the third frame, when he was only edged out by a small margin.

Beginning with the fourth round, Mitchell began to weaken. He took desperate chances in an effort to halt the Maloney surge, but courage alone could not turn back the rushing, fighting Maloney.

By the sixth round Mitchell was in wretched physical condition. Maloney rained punches to his head and body. Teddy Hayes used good judgment when he hopped into the ring and halted things.

Hayes was assisted in Mitchell's corner by Mickey Walker, world's middleweight champion. Mickey is the same gracious, smiling young man who made such a hit here in recent bouts with Lou Bogash, Jock [illegible], Pal Reed and Nate Siegal.

MALONEY weighed 198 pounds, while Mitchell scaled 184 pounds. The big difference in weight was a distinct advantage to Maloney. He was too powerful for his lighter opponent.

In the 10-round semifinal, which went on after the main event, Leo Mitchell, a brother of Andy, outscored Homer Robertson. There was little action in this event.

PHIL MERCURIO of New York was awarded the decision over Lou Bogash of Bridgewater, after a spirited eight-round contest. Bogash had a decided advantage in the early rounds. Mercurio made a fast finish which is probably what caught the eyes of the judges.

Bunker Hill, Leo Flynn's black ace, kayoed Paul Hoffman of Holland in five frames.

Tiger Tom Dixon flattened Terry Mitchell in five chapters, while Joe Stockman punched Jack O'Dowd out of the picture in a round.

Mr. Goodfellow Appeals to the Sporting World

By MYLES T. McSWEENEY

I WAS seated alone in the office, gazing at the flood of Christmas color in the streets below. I was half dreaming of a fireplace where little stockings were hung, of toys, and games, and the happy laughter of children. It must have been because Freddy Lane had been telling me about his little ones waiting with such impatience the coming of Santa Claus on Christmas Eve.

The door to the office opened softly, and an old friend awoke me from my revery.

"I am Mr. John Goodfellow," he began. "You know me, of course?"

"Why certainly, John. You look a bit worried. What is the matter?"

"I am a bit troubled. You see, I have received the most heart melting appeals from families who plead for some little help to make Christmas something more than just another dreary winter day for them. I have received many offers to help such families, but there are still quite a few for whom Christmas is going to be cheerless, unless I find more Goodfellows to help me."

"Of course, the sport fans and promoters have offered to help."

"No," said John. "Unless I am mistaken, none of them are yet listed."

"Why that is strange, John. You remember that I have always rated sport fans and promoters as generous, almost to a fault. They have never, as far as I remember, even hesitated to contribute to a worthy cause. And when it is a matter of brightening the lives of little children, and helping the unfortunate poor, I am surprised that they have not been among the first to help. Maybe they don't know about your plans to provide for the needy on Christmas Day."

"They must read the paper."

"Listen, John, I know that the sport fans and promoters will not fail you. I'll simply call the matter to their attention on the sport pages. Wait and see if my confidence in their generosity is misplaced."

John Goodfellow departed a little happier, a little more hopeful.

Now, members of the sporting world, it is up to you. Maintain your reputation for real sportsmanship. Take a stiff one right on the pocketbook and don't wince.

Take a long count, the longer the better, on the bankroll. Send in, at once, your name and address if you are willing to take care of some needy family or, if you are too busy, your donations to Mr. John Goodfellow, who is working day and night to help the needy on Christmas Day. Send your name or contributions in care of the Sports Department.

And some hearts, chilled by misfortune and the winter winds, will be made warm; from some despairing eyes, the tears will be wiped away and from the lips of children will pour forth prayers of gratitude to you, whose big heart and loose purse will have made Christmas Day a happy one for them.

AL LASSMAN IN NEW YORK HOSPITAL

New York, Dec. 15 (AP)—Al Lassman, New York University football captain, who was injured in the game with Carnegie Tech, has returned from Pittsburgh to deny persistently the many rumors about his condition.

Great care was taken to keep his arrival secret, but after he had reached the hospital, where he will remain for the next two weeks, he set at rest the report that he was paralyzed and not in full control of his mental faculties by saying up and saying that such stories were "baloney."

Charley Vye, assistant football coach who remained with Lassman after his injury and returned with him in a private car, reported that the giant tackle was in good spirits all the way and kept up a lively conversation. Lassman plans to remain in seclusion in the hospital for at least two weeks more, then go to some Southern resort to recuperate.

POLO

By BILL McAULEY

The opening of the Boston Indoor Pony Polo Association is scheduled for tonight with a double-header on the program, in which the Harvard varsity and frosh aggregations will participate at the Commonwealth Armory.

The preliminary game will start at 8:15 p.m. and Troop C, 110th Cavalry will start at 8:15 p.m. Three chukkers will be played. After this, the feature event between the Crimson varsity trio and the Danvers Riding Club will be played.

The preliminary game will then be resumed, three more chukkers being the contest, and then the final three of the feature event will be played.

The above order allows the ponies the necessary rest, as indoor conditions are not quite as good for the animals as outdoor. Six chukkers in succession would be causing too much of the horses.

The handicap system will be in effect, and the Crimson varsity will have to concede the Danvers trio a start of nine goals. Harvard carries a handicap of 14 goals while their opponents are rated at 5. Forrester Clark is rated as 6 goal man, Ed bridge Gerry 5, and George Clark young brother of Forrester, 3. For Danvers Sam Hopkins, former Lafayette star, is rated a 2 man, with Dudley Clark the same number and Cy Newbegin 1.

Remarkable Story of Actress Boston Knew Well

CHAPTER 12

SEEKING an emphatic exit perhaps, early one morning at the Mission Lola Montez had married Patrick Hull, tall, reddy, likable enough in a rough fashion, a politician—married him, as she said, because he was the best story-teller she had ever known, and went at once to Sacramento for an engagement. The story of her season there is hardly clear.

Every one had now begun the game of burlesquing her tempestuous papers were full of

At a near-by camp they offered the songstress an immense nugget of gold, rough like themselves, they humbly said, and hoped that she would accept it. This was perhaps not the best moment for the spider dance or for a worldly rehearsal of revolutionary life in foreign lands.

So Lola Montez arrived in Grass Valley shorn of glory, trailing sufficient clouds of wickedness. She would have been humble, but she was nothing of the kind. Learning

Small Lotta Crabtree Had Red Hair and Merry Black Eyes

Lola maintained a picturesque style and played with children

was small Lotta Crabtree with her red hair, merry black eyes, and irrepressible laugh, of the nuisance-making sort, who claimed special interest. Lotta was shy at first, but Mrs. Crabtree let her several days at a time at Lola's cottage, though as a rule she hardly permitted the child out of her sight

The two fantastic figures were full of oddity. Severely conventional Mrs. Crabtree always was, and all her life Lotta kept to prescribed ways in incredible innocence. It may be doubted whether she ever knew more than the faint outlines of Lola's career. Yet undoubtedly Lotta grew livelier with her strange new exciting companion.

Lola taught her to dance; and though that imperious spirit would never have admitted it, Lotta had a far truer sense of rhythm than Lola herself ever had. Lotta's tiny feet learned the intricacies of a few ballet steps. Liking innovation, Lola had picked up fandangos and hickland flings; these, too, she taught Lotta in sudden gusts of pleasure

Every day the child learned to sing small ballads; with her she learned to ride horseback. Through the streets of the village over a lovely hill of color into deep forests, Lola dashed with Lotta on the saddle in front or on a pony at her side. In a blacksmith's shop at Rough and Ready, Lola stood the child on an anvil, clapped her hands, had her dance before a little crowd and declared that she must go to Paris.

Lotta lost her shyness, and flew in and out among a crowd of strolling players who were steadily drawn to Grass Valley, and who stayed for an hour or two if they disdained wit or character; if they were dull, they quickly departed

An entertainer came through who rang his own bell and announced a show, beat his own drum, and impersonate 32 different characters, including Webster and Daw's Poplet, a whose assortment of gold-ring Zeros, Yankee, Dutch, Scotch, Irish Dromios, and a few personified rats from Pike County Missouri and a scattering of love-sick damsels sieve-like curves. The shouting Seven Pipes of Pipeville ,with the last theatrical news from San Francisco, with his comic bundle of songs, and a new sheaf of impersonations

Not only Lotta but her mother learned fragments of songs, bits of burlesque, touches of impersonation. Occasionally joining the crowd, Mrs. Crabtree again found herself on the fringe of theatrical life, listening eagerly to theatrical news, fending its attraction, for at bottom she still distrusted these vagrants

Her charges stung him with humiliation. Falsely, she was putting him in the shoes of a hypocrite. He told himself that he was spurning all that was sordid in his past; not that he was turning against old friends but none of this he was able to put into language that would penetrate her passion-beaten understanding.

"I'm not high-hatting you, Bernice," he said, "but you don't get my angle—that's all."

Her eyes softened.

"I'm crazy about you, Eddie, and whatever you do, I'll stay the same, that's the way I'm built."

She pressed a clinching hand quickly to her breast. "It's in me—here!"

The situation was hopeless. Eddie's cold realization that he would have to stand firm and not be swept off his feet by this fatal catastrophe of love, gave him, suddenly, the outward poise of negligent coolness.One thing he could not do—he could not beg her, he could just plead. And, after all, he could not believe are really meant to cause him unhappiness.

"All right, Kid," he said, with a sudden smile that masked his feelings. "You'll just have to do the best way you can. I'll have the horse hitched to the buggy and I'll drive you into town myself."

It was the quickest way to get rid of her. Now, when she knew she could not stay under his roof the keen edge of her first disappointment grew dull; she was even able to laugh a bit and exclaim naively over the unfamiliar objects of the country.

With her bags in the back of the buggy, they drove along the dirt road toward town, and resolutely thrusting all aprehension out of his mind, Eddie was able to create a small, artificial interest in her presence.

He laboriously steered her mind away from the hectic discussion of her mad pursuit of him. There were a thousand bits of news from the city that she could tell him—but she had no real interest in this

Nevertheless, he urged her to regale him with new information about the death of the Big Guy and the dissolution of the mob. He even seemed interested when she told him that the money she now possessed had been earned by a small beauty

Bisch on Reducing

By L. E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D.

Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

WOMEN are not forever to be bothered by the problem of reducing. Often, indeed, they are actually not overweight. But reduce they must. The boyish form has become almost a kind of obsession.

To try to reduce below your average, standard weight is, however, dangerous. I would you become ill from it. The best rule to follow is to draw on. In the process of reducing below what you should be you will find a weak feeling yourself

No woman should be

however, for wanting to reduce if

is definitely overweight.

What all physicians criticise, though, are some of the methods which women employ to accomplish this

The taking of drugs is certainly to be deplored and in this connection special mention should be made of thyroid extract, although it is not strictly a drug, but a gland product.

Thyroid pills and capsules—and these are manufactured from the thyroids of horse and sheep—certainly work as reducing agents in many women since they speed up metabolism, that is, they increase the breaking-down processes in the body

But under no circumstances should thyroid, or any drug for that matter, be taken unless it be prescribed by the doctor, is taken exactly as he says, and the patient continues under his care.

The heart is very easily affected by thyroid and I have seen several cases where improper use of thyroid weakened the heart to a dangerous extent and produced alarming nervous symptoms.

Exercise and diet are the best all-round reducing agents as well as the most harmless known

It should be borne in mind that the bulk of the food is not as important as its

A small

tains about as many calories as a plate of tomato and lettuce, a glass of the latter will satisfy the sensations of hunger better while the former will put on weight

Overweight people should avoid as much as possible fats, milk sugars and starches. Instead, they should use lean pork, cause fat meats mix by the gastric and all cream.

Water should not be taken at meals except in very small quantities.

If one gets very hungry at meal time it is a good plan to eat six times a day instead of three, each time with a small amount and so spoiling the appetite, for a hearty meal. The sum-total number of calories of these six meals will and should be less than that of three heavy ones.

Exercise also helps reducing, but that is what women are often reluctant to take.

Often people complain that exercise makes them more hungry than ever. This is because they are exercising too strenuously. Simple, motonous exercises, like the "dully don't" are best. In fact, there is danger to fat people from overstraining at violent exercise.

A NEW DOLL SET

Any little doll mother may not only make dolly's clothes, but those of her friends as well, if she sews by the pattern given below. The doll may be of cloth, cretonne or scraps of silk or satin. One or two colors are effective most used. For the rompers, cretonne or gingham is pleasing. Dolly will be glad of the dear little pockets in her rompers, and "Pierrot," the clown, will get quite a little thrill in his comfortable costume if his arms and legs are fastened so as to be movable.

The pattern comprising the doll and the garments is cut in 3 sizes, small, 12 inches; medium, 16 inches, large, 20 inches in length. The doll requires for a medium size ¾ yard, the rompers ⅞ yard, and the suit and hat 1¼ yards of 27-inch material.

MARTHA LEE TELLS OF CULINARY SECRETS

TODAY I have for you the promised recipes which were demonstrated in the Martha Lee Kitchen by Angelo Di Matteo, steward and chef of the Hotel Arlington. Never was a finer lesson given in our kitchen and the recipes are as practical as they are delicious.

First Mr. Di Matteo prepared Antipasto Alla Italiana. For this 5 stalks of crisp celery were shredded into julienne (shoe string) pieces. Two heads of chicory lettuce could be used also was shredded, with 2 green peppers. These were combined and sprinkled with salt, pure Italian olive oil, tarragon vinegar and white pepper.

Next two pimentos were chopped and mixed thoroughly with the other ingredients. These were arranged on a bed of lettuce and decorated with sardines and radish roses round the edge.

Fillets of anchovies (put up in oil) were curled around the finger and in each curl was placed a large Spanish queen olive. Thin slices of Italian prosciutto (ham) and salami completed the decoration of the antipasto. To serve with this a head of crisp celery was cut in lengthwise strips so that the hearts, as well as the outside stalks, are served together. Americans could well take a leaf from Mr. Di Matteo's book in this, for 'most always a favored few get the tender hearts, while the others struggle with the outer stalks.

For Baked Oysters Pacific Mr. Di Matteo melted 4 tbsps. of butter in a heavy frying pan. To this he added ½ of a green sweet pepper, cut in small dice, 3 good sized mushrooms cut in lengthwise slices, ¼ of a small onion, finely minced, and salt to taste.

When the vegetables were tender a half-pint of freshly opened oysters was added to the pan and simmered until the edges curled. A bit of butter was put in an earthen individual baking dish and placed in the oven to heat.

A sprinkling of cracker crumbs and paprika was spread over the bottom of the dish. To the oysters was added another sprinkling of paprika and a tbsp. of cooking sherry. The oysters were poured into the dishes and baked in a hot oven for 10 minutes, after sprinkling the top with buttered crumbs.

When the oysters were removed from the oven they were sprinkled again with paprika, a dash of sherry and a few drops of lemon juice.

Broccoli Milanaise was quite the most delicious vegetable dish we've seen in the Martha Lee Kitchen for many a moon. Broccoli of the first quality, for which the Hotel Arlington is famous, was carefully cleaned and boiled for 20 minutes in salted water. When tender it was arranged on a hot platter, and butter, heated to a delicate golden brown, was poured over it. Next, a generous

The beef fillets were fried to delicate brown in butter in a very heavy frying pan and, meanwhile, sliced boiled artichokes dotted with butter were placed in a casserole to heat in the oven with the other vegetables. When the meat was done to a turn, the fillets were arranged on circles of bread sauted in white vegetable shortening.

In the pan in which the meat was cooked was placed ½ of a minced onion and stirred until delicately browned. To this was added a dozen mushroom caps and ½ cupful of cooking sherry.

The mushrooms were simmered in this mixture until tender and last of all was added a can of tomatoes strained through a medium fine sieve. As the center of attraction of this dish a tower was cut from a loaf of bread, browned delicately in the hot fat, and around the tower was arranged the fillets garnished with the vegetable.

On the slices of artichokes were arranged in petal fashion the boiled carrots and white turnips, with the peas as centers. To the gravy and mushrooms in the pan was added a sprinkling of parsley and a dash of Worcestershire sauce, and this was poured over the beef fillets.

Salad Marrocain: Used for its foundation a Casaba melon from which the top was removed and the center scooped out a bit. The center, mixed with diced banana, ½ an apple diced, the sections of 1 grapefruit and 1 orange cut in small bits, served as a filling for the shell, and around the top were arranged in flower fashion petals of the orange and grapefruit sections.

Crowned with a wreath of banana slices, the finishing touches of this salad were crescents of thin apple slices arranged around the top of the melon in wing fashion.

We certainly think Angelo Arlington and Mr. Di Matteo are to be congratulated on the excellence of this unusually valuable lesson.

Faithfully yours,
MARTHA LEE.

CHAPTER SIX

At exactly 12:01 the Police Commissioner and detective stepped gingerly out of Police Headquarters, stopping only long enough at a public telephone booth to exchange clothes. From now on, mark you, the Commissioner is the Lieutenant and the Lieutenant is the Commissioner.

Furthermore, they went immediately to Superior Court and had their names legally changed. This involves the story, for if either of them should be proven guilty of the crime the other would suffer for it.

In the meantime, who was the lady, left for dead, behind the locked door? It is hardly fair at this time to reveal this data. But the author will say that she was not dead at all and that as soon as the officers had departed she arose and went to the telephone, where the following conversation transpired:

Adam Scoffaw's Journal

This evening supped alone in a gay cafeteria, and with loneliness to be thus negotiated from my own fireside, I did put up a bold front, tapping time to the musique with foote, and drinking glass with spoon, and applauding mightily when the orchestra play "Pori and the Pheasant." Ho-hum! This worlde is a pig-stye.

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By HELEN ROWLAND

WOMAN has lost none of her charm by engaging in the various professions and activities of business; admits the German Ambassador to the United States.

Once it was believed that if women went into the business world, they would soon become hard-eyed, hard-voiced, hard-boiled, hybrids. But NOW look at the dear things!

They can carry a brief-case in one hand and a vanity-case in the other with perfect ease and nonchalance. They can carry the secrets of a whole office system inside their heads and a permanent wave on the outside, without blinking an eyelash. They can run a beauty shop or a tea-room with one hand, and powder their noses with the other!

But—shush! Business life has CHANGED a woman's charm. It has robbed her of nearly all her old charms but it has given her twice as many new charms in their place.

It has robbed her of that appealing "helplessness" and pretty shyness which used to thrill a man with a sense of chivalry and tenderness.

But it has given her a clear-eyed self-confidence which has reduced her inferiority complex to a minimum and given her poise and manner instead of awkwardness.

It has inspired her to cut off bewitching curls and ruffles and her long hair but it has also inspired her with a passion for neatness cleanliness and good grooming.

It has taken away some of her frills and fluffiness, but it has also relieved her of all such hideous atrocities as bustles, corsets, hair-rats, and billowing bloat.

It has robbed her of some of her [illegible] ... but it has given her an understanding of the genus homo, which makes her more interesting and companionable.

To a girl who works in a business office from 9 to 5, no man is a fascinating mystery or a Great Big Hero. She has seen too many of them in petty moods and mental dishabille.

But she has learned to speak a man's language, to be generous to his faults, to play his game, and to talk to him about something that really interests him.

In short, she has exchanged all "the charms" of a cute little plaything, for the far more valuable and alluring charms of a real COMPANION!

SMART SAYINGS OF CLEVER CHILDREN

The Boston Evening American will pay $1 for publishes smart sayings. Address "Smart Sayings," Boston Evening American.

"Why, Freddie," exclaimed the mother of a precocious five-year-old, "aren't you ashamed to call auntie stupid? Go to her at once and tell her you are sorry."

"Auntie," said the little fellow a few moments later, "I'm awfully sorry you're so stupid."

ANOTHER NEW ENGLAND FIRM PROSPERING

By FRANK H. MELOON
Financial Editor

Another Bay State concern, as reported in yesterday's Boston Evening American, refutes the idea New England is "slipping." This is Westfield Mfg. Co., Boston-listed world's largest manufacturer of bicycles. Westfield moves to declare a 100 per cent stock "melon" and reports forward business bookings as the largest the company has ever enjoyed.

Many rumors are flying around the financial districts concerning the proposed merger of Goodyear, U. S. Rubber and Seiberling. Officials remain mum. P. W. Litchfield, president of Goodyear, is credited with it achieving much of the success that has come for his company. One story, unconfirmed, runs that dividends are once on Goodyear before the end of the current year.

Importance of the new legislation liberalizing Bay State savings bank investments was early pointed out in this column. What has happened? Note the aggregate statement of condition as of Oct. 31 of the 190 Massachusetts savings banks. On that date these banks owned a total of $142,083,000 gas, electric and water company bonds compared with $136,190,000 on June 30, 1928, and $103,896,000 on Oct. 31, 1927. There has also been an increase in telephone company bonds, from $32,263,000 on Oct. 31, 1927, to $41,597,000 on Oct. 31, 1928. The trend in public funds, bonds and notes has been the other way. However, the aggregate investment of these securities dropping from $290,584,000 to $251,376,000 between Oct. 31 last year and the same date this year. In railroad bonds and notes there has been an increase during the year of a bit over $8,000,000, or from $232,329,000 to $240,757,000.

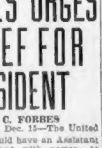
FORBES URGES RELIEF FOR PRESIDENT

By B. C. FORBES

NEW YORK, Dec. 15—The United States should have an Assistant President, clothed with powers to handle, under the direction of the President, many of the routine matters which now consume much of the time of the Chief Executive's time.

Congress should take a lesson from business in this matter.



B. C. Forbes

President Hedges declares:

"The duties of the Presidency are exceedingly heavy. The responsibilities are overwhelming.

"It is, of course, obvious that President should not burden himself with details. He should be attended to by his departments and his office staff. He should not do any work that he can have done by others. Such energy as he has should be directed not so much toward doing work as making certain that the work is being well done."

His suggestion that a summer White House be established within automobiling distance of Washington is good as far as it goes. But it does not go nearly far enough.

Provision should be made to lighten the routine task of the President. It should not be difficult to induce Congress to pass legislation providing for the creation of the office of assistant to the President. Wide latitude should be allowed the Chief Executive in determining just what duties should be performed by his assistant.

The United States is the biggest business in the world," it is now often said. Well, what have other large businesses found it necessary to do? Many of them, having discovered that there were more executive duties to do than any one man could attend to, have created supplementary positions. Nearly all gigantic organizations have, in addition to a president, a chairman of the board. Many have an executive vice-president, exercising very wide powers. And, of course, vice-presidents have become universal in companies of magnitude.

The business world has had many instances of chief executives killing themselves by overwork. At this moment not a few presidents of corporations and institutions are suffering from nervous breakdowns due to overstrain. Board of directors, however, are now awake to the importance of doing everything practicable to preserve the health of their chief executive.

Should the "biggest business in the world" neglect to take this same precaution?

Herbert Hoover has had vast experiences in business. He could very readily co-operate with Congress in drawing up a bill to define, or at least outline, the responsibilities which it would be unreasonable for the Assistant President to undertake. It is doubtful, however, if Mr. Hoover would make the first move, since he justifiably prides himself on the amount of work he can get through.

But were he invited by Congress, he doubtless would readily acquiesce in so sensible a plan as the delegating of unimportant routine work to a capable assistant. Of course, nothing would be attained by a piecemeal approach in the slightest upon the authority and responsibility of the Chief Executive. Therefore, he would be strictly under his orders. Just as all minor executives are in a business organization, there always would be no room whatever for any clashing of minds or friction of any kind. The selection of the assistant should be left to the Chief Executive, also as in the business world.

What befell President Woodrow Wilson and President Warren G. Harding should not be forgotten simply because Calvin Coolidge happened to be a man of unusual sturdy constitution and able to function for long periods without feeling the necessity for extended relaxation.

Certain it is that the whole trend in this country is to heap greater and greater tasks and responsibilities upon the President. Therefore, the need for meeting the situation is bound to become more urgent each year.

Will someone in Congress please take the initiative?

BOSTON RADIO AMERICAN

FRED TOYE, RADIO EDITOR — VOICING THE GREAT DEMOCRACY OF THE AIR

ALWYN BACH WJZ SOLOIST TONIGHT

By FRED TOYE
Radio Editor

NEW ENGLAND friends of Alwyn E. Bach, former chief announcer at WBZ-A, will be interested to know that he will be starred as a singer in the "Among Ourselves" program to be broadcast at 10 o'clock this evening through WJZ, New York, and KWK, St. Louis. Bach, who is one of the staff of regular announcers with the National Broadcasting Company, was frequently heard in baritone songs during his stay with the local Westinghouse station. He will commence his program tonight with an aria from "The Hunting of Christ" by Koutsebue. Then will follow "The Bitterness of Love" by Dunn, "A Memory," by Rudolf Gang, and "The Song of Tristram," by Borowski.

FINAL A. K. CONTESTS

TEN YOUNG SINGERS who have won audition contests in regional Atwater Kent broadcasts, will occupy the A. K. period on WEEI and the National Broadcasting Company's chain for final selection of first prize winners. The board of judges includes Mme. Schumann-Heink, Mme. Louise Homer, Mrs. Otto H. Kahn, Mrs. Edgar Stillman Kelley and Edward W. Bok. Features to be heard on WEEI during the coming week include:

Sunday — 1:30, Peerless Reproducers; 2, Saxer Hour of Hospitality; 4, Dr. Cadman; 5:30, Fox Trappers; 6, Stetson Parade; 8:05, Goodrich Silvertown Cord Orchestra; 9, Jenney Hour; 9:15, Atwater Kent; 10:30, Academy of Arts and Letters.

Friday—8, United Opera Company in Romeo and Juliet; 9, True Story Hour; 10, Then and Now.

MARSHALL IN "LA JUIVE"

HALEVY'S OPERA, "La Juive," will be broadcast in part during the Wednesday night Radiite Hour tonight when the principal roles will be taken by Charles Marshall, Frida Leider and Alexander Kipnis. The work carries all the gruesomeness of the Spanish Inquisition, culminating in the awful torture of a Christian lad for a Jewish lass. In contrast to most operas, the tenor role pictures an old man, Eleazar, the patriarchal father of the girl. The lover is in bass. This feature will come to New England through WBZ. Chain programs to be heard from that station during the week are as follows:

Sunday—2, Roxy; 3, Peoples' Symphony Orchestra; 5:30, Dr. Fosdick; 6:30, Whittall-Anglo-Persians; 8:15, Collier's Hour; 9:45, El Tango Romantico.

Monday—7:30, Roxy; 8:30, Duo-Dise program; 9:30, Real Folks.

NOVEL BY ROCHE STARTS MONDAY IN AMERICAN

A six-day novel by Arthur Somers Roche, famous and popular fiction writer, begins next Monday in the Boston Evening American.

It is a pulsating story of Newport, the social whirl, brilliant women, clever men, jewels and — the girl, whose shapely, unclad legs give the tale its intriguing title, "No Stockings."

This novel will be complete in six installments, from Monday through Saturday, and is the first of several that will be so published.

Very few authors can make life vibrate on the printed page as can Arthur Somers Roche, and fewer still are those who can write a mystery-romance.

His command of the art is exemplified on the very first page in "No Stockings," in which a love-clumsy bachelor parades beautiful women (and life) from a daring mise.

"Shadowy at first in the gloom, then flushed by the light of the sun, he saw her almost run along the verandas. . . . Two hours later he knew she was not running back. A mind of more experience would have guessed it long before.

"But she had kissed him, hadn't she? And she—she couldn't be the kind that—

What did that kiss lead to? It tested the fiber of Lessing's soul, sounded the depths to its depths, and made him—but let Roche tell you in his inimitable style and with his ingenious mind and from out of his knowledge of Life.

"From where he first found knees to her feet, her limbs were bare." That's the girl in "No stockings," whose name is first in Monday's Boston Evening American for a six-day romp on the rim of romance, in which she goes!

Funeral Rites for Reinhart Tomorrow
